Study proves smoking marijuana ruins cells

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Columbia University research group Friday revealed findings it said represent "the first direct evidence of cellular damage" in man from habitual smoking of marijuana.

The study, carried out by the College of Physicians and Surgeons, stressed the role played by marijuana in apparently weakening the role of certain white blood cells in fighting viruses. It also dealt with the possible genetic effects of the extended use of "pot."

Dr. Gabriel Nahas, who headed the four-member research team, said that "for a long time educators and legislators have wanted hard facts about biological damage from long-term use of this drug. Now we are in a position to start supplying them with such facts."

The report called for a "thorough reappraisal" of the findings of the National Commission of Marijuana, which has recommended the decriminalization for the use of marijuana and related drugs.

"The medical profession should not accept those recommendations of the commission which might lead to marijuana legalization without further analysis of all the facts," Nahas said.

In tests with control groups Nahas' team said the white cells' ability to divide—to reproduce—was 40 per cent less in regular marijuana smokers than in nonsmokers.

Nahas said it was not specifically known what inhibited the cell division but suggested that it may involve "the tendency of tetrahydrocannabinol (the active ingredient in marijuana) to inhibit...reproduction of the chemical DNA, which stimulates cell division in the body."

Team member Akira Morishima noted that this phenomenon combined with chromosome breakage may lead to "increased attrition of white blood cells and consequently to weakened resistance to invading organisms."

Nahas' group, which included Drs. Nicole Suciu-Foca and Jean Pierre Armand, also observed that marijuana products "accumulate in the germ cells of the testes and ovaries. It is therefore most urgent to find cut to what extend long-term marijuana use will impair the genetic equilibrium...and adversly affect the offspring of the marijuana user."

2.1 million federal workers entitled to back salary

Nixon illegally delayed pay raises, court rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Appeals Court ruled late Friday that President Nixon illegally delayed by three months a 1972 pay raise for the government's civilian employes and they are entitled to the income they missed.

The ruling, although involving a single 60,000-member federal union, would be applicable to all the government's 2.1 million civilian employes and involves an estimated $500 million.

Ruling in a suit brought by the National Treasury Employees Union, the three-judge panel said Nixon failed to abide by the law in delaying from October, 1972, to January, 1973, a pay adjustment legislated by Congress.

In a lengthy opinion the court held that Nixon properly could be sued by name and properly could be ordered by the court to see that the government pays its employes the money they lost.

But the court said to spare the President the embarrassment of becoming the subject of such an order, it would merely enter a declaratory judgment that the employes are entitled to the money.

The court said it wanted to give the President a "reasonable time" to comply on his own and was giving him "every opportunity to implement the law as it is declared herein or timely to seek review of this decision."

In its ruling the court said the law required Nixon either to adjust civilian employe pay in October, 1972, according to established formulas intended to keep federal salaries in line with private commerce, or to recommend an alternative formula to Congress in advance.

It said "President Nixon without legal justification failed to take either course of action." Instead he merely advised Congress that because he felt wage guidelines then in effect were clearly intended to cover federal employes, he was deferring the October adjustment until January, 1973.

The opinion took sharp aim at the Justice Department's contention in defending Nixon that the President could not be sued and was not subject to court order.

The opinion said the government's suggestion that Nixon's action was not subject to challenge except through impeachment by Congress "hardly opens up a meaningful road to effectuate the rights" of the plaintiffs.

OPPOSES DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., holds up a newspaper article questioning the wisdom of the nation's switch to year-round daylight savings time. Percy quizzed Federal Energy head William Simon about the time change during a hearing of the Senate Ivestigations subcommittee Friday and told Simon that he has received hundreds of complaints from his constituents about the switch.

Shultz predicts price climb, then return to normal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz Friday warned consumers that prices would be climbing rapidly over the next few months but the overall economy, after absorbing the shock of the energy crisis, will bounce back in late 1974.

Shultz also said the energy shortage sparked by the Arab oil embargo "has created the greatest sense of uncertainty in the world since the 1930s or World War II."

Shultz, President Nixon's top economic adviser, made his remarks to a meeting of the American Society of Association Executives. The session was closed to the press but a copy of the secretary's comments was released beforehand.

As a hedge against uncertainties, Shultz said budget officials had developed contingency plans covering added federal spending "to a greater degree than usual" and he urged Congress to reform the unemployment compensation system to help the larger number of jobless workers expected in the months ahead.

Inflation, which last year was the worst since 1947, "will continue to be a difficult problem" with rising energy prices the main culprit. "When you add this (energy) to the many other inflationary pressures that are in the system, it is a sure thing that our price indexes are going to be climbing rapidly over the next few months.

Hafif suggests Brown running despite 'conflict of interest'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Herbert Hafif, Democratic candidate for governor, suggested Friday that Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. has a conflict of interest in running for governor and in soliciting campaign contributions.

"No man can be referee and player in the same ball game," said Hafif, a Claremont attorney, in a statement to news media.

He said Brown plans to make a formal announcement of his candidacy for governor Monday and asserted:

"The people of this state cannot be put into the impossible position of having a political candidate sit in judgment upon his own campaign contributions—a job the constitution imposes upon him.

"Brown has campaigned for governor ever since he became the secretary of state. He has a right to continue that campaign, but no right to do so at taxpayer expense in an office that has quasi-judicial functions.

"As a lawyer, he should know that a judge will disqualify himself from judging his own case where a possible conflict of interest may arise."

President proclaims Sunday as MIA Awareness Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Friday proclaimed Sunday as "National MIA Awareness Day" and criticized North Vietnam for hampering U.S. efforts to trace servicemen missing in action in Vietnam.

"Although the Vietnam agreement of Jan. 27, 1973, obligates North Vietnam and its allies to account for the missing and to return the remains of those who died, Communist authorities have failed to account for our missing or to return the remains of our dead in the year that has elapsed since the Vietnam agreement was signed," Nixon's proclamation said.

"As a result, the families of our missing men continue to live with the anguish of uncertainty about the fate of their loved ones."

Spokesman Gerald L. Warren said Hanoi's refusal to admit U.S. reconnaissance teams to some areas of Vietnam had severely handicapped American efforts to account for the more than 1,200 U.S. servicemen still listed as missing and to recover the bodies of more than 1,100 Americans known to have been killed in the war.

Nixon urged Americans to support efforts to make "the fullest possible accounting" of missing servicemen.

Dog bites baby, dog then dies

CITITANOVA MARCHE, Italy (UPI) — A dog bit a baby on the leg and died 24 hours later, police said Friday. Mario Baleani said his eight-month old puppy had been in perfect health and had shown no signs of illness prior to biting the child.

'Damned columnists and writers'

Truman to JFK: 'Give 'em hell'

Waltham, Mass. (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman, known for his directness and salty language, offered words of encouragement to John F. Kennedy when the young President was beset by criticism in 1962.

Truman sent a letter to Kennedy on Aug. 11, telling him not to let editorial comment discourage him. The handwritten letter was among the papers made public this week by the John F. Kennedy Library.

It reads:

"Personal and Confidential

"Mr. President, don't let those damned columnists and editorial writers discourage you.

"In my opinion you are on the right track.

"The President is just as great as the Congress—and really greater—when he exercises his Constitutional Prerogatives.

"You are going through the same situations and troubles that Franklin Roosevelt, Abraham Lincoln and I had to meet. Don't like to put myself in that class—but I had a hell of a time.

"You meet 'em cuss 'em and give 'em hell and you'll win in 1964. HST."

House group takes 1st legal impeachment step

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee has taken its first legal step towards getting evidence relevant to the possible impeachment of President Nixon, it was disclosed Friday.

John M. Doar, special counsel for the impeachment inquiry, filed a motion in U.S. District Court here to get a list of campaign contributors and depositions given Common Cause, a citizens' lobby which filed suit against the Committee for the Re-Election of the President (CRP) over campaign contributions.

A spokesman for Common Cause said the depositions included statements from Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a close friend of Nixon, and Patrick J. Hillings, another Nixon friend who sought government favors for the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., which later contributed to Nixon's campaign.

Judiciary Committee aides discounted the significance of the court action. They said it was a pro forma action to get what already had been given the Senate Watergate Committee. Court approval was given, the aides said.

The Senate Committee and other agencies have been turning over to the impeachment inquiry materials they have collected and which already are available to the public.

The court action by Doar was apparently the inquiry's first attempt to get information not available to the public. Some of the impeachment resolutions filed against Nixon charge him with "soliciting and accepting illegal donations for use in his political campaigns ... "

The Senate Watergate Committee had access to the nonpublic information in the Common Cause vs. CRP suit through previous court action, and Doar believed that to avoid legal obstacles he would file with the court stipulations that all parties in the suit agreed to the Senate Committee making it available to Judiciary.

Boost approved to ease shortages

Price of steel going up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council (CLC) Friday moved to ease shortages of steel products needed by oil companies for energy production and granted the nation's biggest steelmakers their fourth price boost under the Phase IV economic stabilization program.

In a series of actions covering the nation's second largest industry, the CLC:

—Removed price ceilings on hot rolled rod and reinforcing steel, two items that producers have found unprofitable to make but that are crucial to production of products needed by oil drillers, mine operators and other energy-related construction.

—Allowed a combination of price increases worth $65 million for 26 big steel producers. The increase is for blast furnace and hot-rolled products and amounts to an average of 0.4 per cent over the companies current combined sales.

—Lifted price controls completely from a variety of products produced by 140 smaller companies. These are primarily specialty items such as electrometallurgical products, wire, pipe and tube.

But the cost council also said it would refuse to consider for the time being any more price boost requests by big steel makers until the stabilization board completes a review of industry prices and costs.

"These actions today should reduce possibilities of domestic shortages of steel products critical to such important and diverse sectors of the economy as agriculture and construction," said CLC director John T. Dunlop. "It should ensure that production of steel products crucial to our country's energy-related needs will be in sufficient supply.

Dunlop added: "The removal of maximum price limitations on individual product items will provide steel companies with greater pricing flexibility and greater incentive for producing oil country goods and other key products such as reinforcing bars, mine roof bolts and baling wire."

Shortages of vital steel products has hampered energy production. For example, oilmen say they can't drill into known reservoirs because of a shortage of steel pipe. Coal mining has been held up because the supply of mine roof bolts has virtually dried up.

Kennedy to ask income tax cuts

Upland youth faces charge of trying to kill his parents

UPLAND — A 17-year-old Upland youth is in the hands of juvenile authorities today facing a charge of attempted murder against his parents.

According to authorities, the youth apparently cut a rubber hose to sabotage the brakes on his parents' car.

Police estimated that if the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Wechselberger of 2480 N. Mountain Ave., had attempted to drive down Mountain Avenue, the car would have quickly gained speeds upwards of 50 miles per hour without any braking power.

The youth and his parents had been involved in a family dispute for several days, apparently over his driving privileges.

The youth's father discovered the sabotage Thursday night after being contacted by police in connection with the youth's arrest on unrelated drug charges.

The youth, along with H. M. J. Quick, 18, of 1281 Bradford Court, was arrested earlier Thursday for possession of marijuana.

The youth's parents were summoned to talk to police about the arrest. Shortly thereafter, however, Wechselberger called police to report that he could not come to the police station because the brakes on his car would not function. He had discovered a pool of brake fluid on the floor of the garage.

Police said that they discovered a pair of wire cutters in the garage that still had brake fluid on them.

The youth, reportedly, admitted to police that he had cut the line.

Speed villain in accidents

NEW YORK (UPI) — In fatal auto accidents, the principal driving error is speed, says the National Safety Council. This includes "speed too fast for conditions."

In injury and total auto accidents the most commonly reported driver error is "failure to yield the right of way."

Sadat: Arabs' turn now for nice gesture

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said recently the United States has changed its policy on the Middle East and the Arabs should make a gesture in return.

Without specifically asking the oil countries to lift their embargo against the United states, Sadat said: "Now that the Americans have made a gesture, the Arabs should make one too."

He said there had been an evolution in U.S. policy since Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger visited Arab countries.

"Previously it was completely favorable to Israel. Today, without having changed radically, it is new," Sadat said.

He made his remarks at a news conference in Algiers before flying here on the last leg of an Arab world tour explaining the details of the Israeli-Egypt disengagement pact.

Tunisia-Libya merger talks are continuing

GENEVA (UPI) — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy and Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba agreed at a surprise meeting Friday to continue discussions toward the merger of their countries, a Tunisian official said.

"The governments will now engage in negotiations on the future institutions of the union starting with a future constitution," Tunisian Foreign Minister Habib Chatti said following a 90-minute session between the leaders. "We are still at the stage of discussing the arrangements for a merger.'

Chatti said it would take up to four months for the Tunisian parliament to decide on a change in Tunisia's constitution permitting a national referendum on the proposed union.

Khadafy, who is expected to return to Libya Saturday, had no comment on the talks.

The two leaders signed a merger agreement on Jan. 12, but Tunis then said it would take some time for the union to be accomplished. Tunisian officials here said privately they doubted the merger would actually be carried out.

Tunisian diplomats said Khadafy was trying to convince Bourguiba to go through with the union.

Khadafy, protected by two dozen security agents, flew here shortly before noon and then met with Bourguiba at the Tunisian diplomatic mission.

Noted English author slain

LONDON (UPI) — Author James Pope-Hennessy, a biographer of British royalty, was stabbed and beaten to death Friday by thieves who left his body bound and gagged in his Georgian home, police said.

The house was ransacked and Hennessy's valet was also stabbed but was not seriously injured, police said.

The 57-year-old Hennessy wrote the official biography of Queen Mary, for which he was given access to the daily diary which she kept from her youth. He was also noted for his travel writing.

His brother, Sir John Pope-Hennessy has been director of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London since 1967.

Witness says Seabock shot at 2 guards

LOS ANGELES — A woman testified Thursday she was driving on Edison Avenue near Euclid Avenue on Oct. 6, 1972 and saw Donald Seabock firing at California Institution for Men prison guards inside of a state prison car.

Mrs. Ernestine Barrere, called to the stand in the murder trial of Seabock and Mrs. Jean Hobson, testified she was driving by with her two small children and saw Seabock fire at two guards.

Seabock and Mrs. Hobson are on trial for murder, assault with a deadly weapon, and rescuing a prisoner in connection with the escape of CIM prisoner Ronald Wayne Beaty that left prison guard Jesus Sanchez dead and guard George Fitzgerald wounded.

Two other persons involved in the plot to free Beaty, Benton Douglas Burt and his wife Andrea Holman Burt, have already been convicted of second degree murder, assault and rescuing a prisoner in the case.

Move underway to force Agnew to repay funds used to improve home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., asked the General Services Administration (GSA) Friday to move in Maryland state courts to recover public money used to improve the suburban home of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

In a letter to GSA administrator Arthur F. Sampson, the six-term congressman cited a recent newspaper report that Agnew's home in nearby Bethesda, Md., was being offered for sale at $325,000, or $135,000 more than he paid for it a year ago.

"I do not believe that we should permit Mr. Agnew, who was forced from office in disgrace, or any other public official, to enrich himself at public expense," Rooney said.

Last June, the GSA reported that $125,000 worth of improvements had been made to the property for protection of the vice president.

They included a brick and redwood fence $39,500; bullet-proof glass, $15,979; driveway and parking area, $12,000; smoke detection system, $4,000; and remodeling to provide Secret Service headquarters in the house, $5,070.

Rooney told the GSA the additions and improvements "were acquired, in effect, by misrepresentations that he was faithfully executing the duties of his office —both legally and with integrity —during a period when he was under criminal investigation by the U.S. Attorney's Office."

Rooney said while there was no federal law to require Agnew to refund the value of such improvements, it was possible to acquire it under common law principles in a state court. He said such law "may render it inequitable for the holder of the legal title to retain benefits derived from concealment and misrepresentation."

"This would place upon Mr. Agnew responsibility to return to the Treasury of the United States that portion of the proceeds of sale to which he is not entitled,'' the congressman said.

Rooney said he did not seek to impose additional hardship on Agnew "but merely to insure that he does not gain further financial reward at taxpayer's expense for activities which led to his resignation from the nation's second highest office."

Ex-student leader, 33, guilty on drug counts

POMONA — A Pomona Superior Court jury Friday afternoon ruled former Chaffey College student leader Douglas Farmer guilty of possession of marijuana for sale and possession of amphetimines.

The verdict came at the end of a lengthy trial before Judge Gerald Malkan. The jury consisted of six women and six men. The panel deliberated one day.

Farmer, 33, formerly of 1360 E. Pasadena St., was president of the Black Students union at Chaffey College. He was arrested Aug. 4 in connection with the holdup June 6 of the Bank of America branch at 1690 E. Holt Ave. in which $8,000 was taken.

Arresting officers, led by state parole agent Robert Sloan, reported finding marijuana and other drugs in Farmer's home at the time he was seized. Farmer also faces trial of federal bank robbery charges in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles Tuesday in connection with the holdup.

Malkan scheduled Farmer's probation hearing and sentencing Feb. 15. He was ordered to remain in custody.

Sloan said he recognized Farmer from pictures taken during the robbery by a surveillance camera. He said Farmer has served terms for robbery in California and Maryland.

GM calls seat belts 'unsure'

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. said Friday some 26,500 new intermediate-size cars may have seat belts that could fail to hold front-seat occupants securely in an accident or during hard braking.

The cars involved are 1974 intermediate-size Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs and Buicks built during November at assembly plants in Framingham, Mass., and Oshawa, Ont.

Dial for answer to dental query

Got a dental problem that you don't care to discuss with your dentist?

The Tri-County Dental Society has a series of tapes that covers topics ranging from wisdom teeth and effective toothbrushing to oral cancer and what not to do for a toothache.

Such service is available to area residents for only the price of a toll call to the society's office in San Bernardino, said Dr. Bruce Lensch, a Chino dentist and society president. The telephone number is (714) 825-7000.

The program started last year with 15 tapes. The library has since been enlarged to 25 tapes. The tapes, made by area dentists, last about three minutes each.

During the first nine months, more than 4,000 telephone calls were received, said Dr. Lensch. "We are now trying to give additional emphasis to the program."

To hear the tapes, residents may phone the society office and ask the secretary for these dental tapes by number:

Tape 301, "The Why and How of Flossing Your Teeth"; 302, "Effective Toothbrushing"; 303, "Dental Plaque — the Cause of Tooth Decay and Gum Disease"; 304, "Diet Tips for Dental Health"; 305, "Malocclusion — crooked Teeth"; 306, "What About Wisdom Teeth?"; 307, "Seven Warning Signs of Gum Disease"; 308, "Why and When to Replace Missing Teeth"; 309, "Canker Sores and Fever Blisters"; 310, "How Important Are Baby Teeth"; 311, "What Not to Do for a Toothache."

Tape 312, "Absessed Teeth Can Be Saved"; 313, "What You Don't Know (About Dentures) Can Hurt You"; 314, "We Know What Causes Bad Breath, Do You?"; 315, "Are Dental X rays Really Necessary?"; 316, "Fluoride Helps Prevent Cavities"; 317, "Dental Insurance"; 318, "Reducing Dental Costs"; 319, "How to Select a Dentist"; 320; "Taking Your Child to the Dentist"; 321, "Which Toothpaste?"; 322, "Tooth Transplants and Implants"; 323, "Are You Afraid of the Dentist?"; 324, "Treating Gum Disease"; and 325, "Oral Cancer."

The Tri-County Dental Society has members in Riverside, San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties.

Poll shows students like noncollege jobs

POMONA — Only three of the top 19 vocations selected by 1,943 high school students polled recently would require a four-year-college education.

Only two of the top 12 vocations selected by 1,055 junior high school students hold that requirement.

This information was relayed to the Pomona school board by Dr. Gene G. Brophy, coordinator of secondary education programs.

Brophy said the survey shows the students' interests in vocational fields do not match up with present study courses; that many are not sure if their present courses are what they want; that the majority will seek help with educational planning; and that there is a need expressed by many students for career guidance.

"We have to make our classroom instruction more relevant to careers, and currently we're making steps in the right dirtction," Brophy said. "I hope we can work a little faster, a little harder."

Brophy said educators need to "expand horizons, awareness, and relate to our students how their classroom experiences relate to what careers."

The 19 top vocations listed by the high school students were stewardess or steward, mechanic, legal secretary, policeman, public service (other than police), lawyer, teacher, truck driver, probation officer, physician, airline pilot, commerce and trade, social worker, musician, registered nurse, secretary-construction, animal scientist, secretary-education and head nurse.

The junior high students listed stewardess or steward, personal development and recreation, lawyer, teacher, mechanic, policeman, truck driver, actor, animal keeper, secretary, airline pilot, fireman and cashier as top career choices.

Brophy said student participation in the survey was voluntary.

Dog fee hikes okayed by Claremont council

CLAREMONT — The City Council has approved increased charges for dogs impounded by the Pomona Valley Humane Society and new dog license fees established by 1973 state legislation.

The city councils of Pomona, San Dimas and La Verne have already okayed the increase — $15 the first time a dog is impounded and $25 for each other impound for the same dog.

Humane Society Executive Director Bruce Richards who spoke at the council meeting Tuesday night explained that increasing the impound fee from $6 to $15 would cover the $12.66 cost of chasing and impounding a stray dog. He said that the new fees would make the owners of impounded dogs responsible for the costs instead of the average homeowner.

Richards explained that two years ago the board of directors of the humane society didn't believe owners would redeem impounded dogs if the fees were higher.

He used figures for the city of Pomona for the past three months to show that dog owners do care for their pets. He said that during last October 86 more dogs were redeemed at $15 each and two more at $25 each than in October 1972.

Richards said that it is impossible to defray the cost of stray dog enforcement on dog license fees alone.

Since state law specifies that license fees for dogs that have been spayed or neutered must be half that charged for an unaltered dog, the humane society will charge $3.50 for spayed female dogs and neutered male dogs and $7 for unspayed female dogs and nonneutered male dogs.

The old rates were $5 for spayed female dogs and all male dogs and $7 for unspayed females.

When the Claremont council expressed its concern about conscientious Claremonters facing an undue hardship paying the $15 redemption fee, Richards explained that 80 per cent of the persons visiting the humane society say it was an accident that the dog got out of its yard.

Richards explained that those who can't pay the entire $15 at one time may fill out a special form to pay it within 60 days.

In Pomona, he said, humane society drivers picked up 365 dogs in October, 268 in November, and 211 in December compared to 416 in December 1972.

Although Councilman Gene Block suggested $10 for the first offense, and $20 for the second, Councilwoman Claire McDonald said she thinks the humane society "earns its fees. Maybe the higher figure will be impressed better on children who have pets."

Richards said he would report back in six months on the success of the new fees.

In other actions, the council:

—Heard Councilman Frank Hungerford and Mayor Bertye Smith report on their testimony at state Sen. George Moscone's Governmental Organization Committee hearing on the disclosure of assets law. They said they were the only ones present to testify about the law. Moscone has clarified his original intent.

—Appointed Howard Bunte, a teacher and a 4-H leader, to the Traffic Safety Committee, to replace John Serpa, appointed to the city Planning Commission.

—Mayor Smith reported that Mrs. Barbara Stout, Pomona Valley Council of Churches, had been appointed to the advisory board of Tri-City Mental Health Authority; and that Mrs. Judy Kern, chairman of the city Parks and Recreation Commission, had been appointed to the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Board.

—Approved a $10,000 agreement with EDAW Inc. for the development of a master plan for James P. Higginbotham Park, Sycamore Canyon, and the Thompson Creek trail system. The city tentatively has budgeted $83,000 in the 1976-77 capital improvements program for construction of Higginbotham Park. The council wanted the agreement to strees that Francis Dean, a principal in the firm, would participate in the project development.

—Authorized the call for bids to be opened Feb. 22 for construction of the easterly two lanes of Claremont Boulevard, a three-quarters of a mile stretch of asphalt, with curb and gutter, linking Foothill Boulevard to Padua Avenue. Ultimately Claremont Boulevard will be a four-lane divided highway.

—Approved paying for planning commissioners Enid Douglass and John Serpa to attend an institute conducted by the League of California Cities at Palm Springs Feb. 6-8. Mayor Smith explained that it would be precedent-setting if the council paid for four commissioners.

—Gave resident Dennis Wheeler a month to come up with a plan and funds for refinishing the Mallows Park wall damaged by a driver.

—Approved preliminary plans for the Cahuilla Park parking lot.

—Set Jan. 30 at 8 a.m. for an inspection tour of the new city police station under construction on Bonita Avenue.

TV week focuses on star of drama about woman, 110

Actress Cicely Tyson, starring in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," to be aired Thursday at 9 p.m. on CBS, is the cover and cover close-up subject of Sunday's TV Week in the Progress-Bulletin.

This drama is about a fictional 110-year-old woman, a former slave, who recounts her lifetime spanning the century from the 1860s and the Civil War to the 1960s and the civil rights movement.

Miss Pittman is shown at various stages of her 110-year life. Cicely Tyson learned to grow old during the film, which she said was a grueling experience.

She spent two hours putting on makeup for the part and 45 minutes taking it off.

Emmy Award-winning animal researcher Jane Goodall is the subject of the inside color page. She will be adding another chapter to the "Jane Goodall and the World of Animal Behavior" series Friday at 8 p.m. on ABC. This program is entitled "The Baboons of Gombe."

This is an informative study on baboon pabits, idosyncrasies and behavior in their native African habitat.

Rowland board urges state vote on teacher bargaining

ROWLAND HEIGHTS — A resolution urging that collective bargaining rights for public school teachers be put to a vote of the people in November has been adopted by the Rowland school board.

In their resolution, the board members voted that numerous legislative proposals for collective bargaining provisions for teachers and other public school employes had been presented in recent years.

The 1973 legislature passed Senate Bill 400 by a majority vote to establish legal provisions for collective bargaining for public school teachers, but this bill was vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

School board members agreed that such legislation undoubtedly would come up again in California in 1974.

They pointed out that "the establishment of collective bargaining provisions for public school employes means the establishment of characteristic bargaining provisions such as collective negotiations, written comprehensive agreements, exclusive representation by one employe group and binding arbitration of contract interpretation disputes."

They agreed that "the enactment into law of these characteristic collective bargaining features would clearly violate the concept that the public school system of California belongs to the people."

Home sales rise in valley

POMONA — The sale of single family homes has perked up in the Pomona Valley.

The Pomona Valley Board of Realtors reported 106 sales during November. This compares to 97 the previous November.

Average sales prices also increased during the period — $28,618 from $25,713. The increase of $2,900 indicates continued value increase and buyers' confidence in Pomona residential property, said Realtors.

The reality board includes Pomona, Claremont, La Verne and a part of San Dimas.

Officials also noted that 17 per cent of the homes sold last November were under the $20,000 price range; 43 per cent in the $20,000 to $30,000 range; and 35 per cent in the $30,000 to $100,000 range.

For every one family which bought a home in the Pomona area for less than $20,000, there were two families which paid $30,000 or more, noted the Realtors.

The number of homes listed for sale during the two Novembers showed a decline this year — 606 compared to 854.

The fact that fewer homes were offered for sale indicates there is a continuing demand for area homes, they added.

2 Ontarians hurt as their bikes collide

ONTARIO — Two Ontario men were injured Thursday evening when two bicycles collided in the 500 block of N. Lemon Avenue, here, police reported.

Steven Arthur Schiffler, 21, of 640 E. E St. was riding his bicycle out of a drive at 500 N. Lemon Ave. about 5:44 p.m. when he collided with a bicycle ridden by Jose Torres Ortega, 18, of 201 E. Holt Blvd. Ortega was southbound on Lemon Avenue.

Both Schiffler and Ortega fell from their bicycles on impact. Schiffler, who suffered a head injury, was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital for emergency treatment and later released. Ortega suffered minor scrapes and bruises but refused medical attention.

Police said that Schiffler apparently failed to yield the right of way to Ortega.

Foxy play vs. foxy defense

By Oswald & James Jacoby

North's jump to four spades was intended to show good spade support and a minimum hand. He sure had what he advertised, but no one can find any fault with South's investigating seven and finally settling for six after North showed no kings at all.

Looking at all the cards the slam is not a good one. South needs a good break in diamonds to collect 12 tricks.

Opening lead—10♣

The best percentage play is to lead a diamond to dummy's nine. If it loses to the king or queen declarer comes back to his hand and finesses the jack.

As you can see this play is going to work. West holds the queen and 10!

At the table, West made things more difficult to South. West went up with the queen of diamonds on the first diamond lead. South, the late Albert Morehead covered with dummy's ace; stripped the hand of hearts and clubs and led a second diamond.

West played low, but it was one of those cases of Greek meeting Greek. Morehead knew that West was capable of playing queen from queen-10-small. He finessed the nine and made the slam.

Keep quiet about feelings

By JEAN ADAMS

MISTAKE: (Q.) Geoff was really nice to me. I really thought he liked me. So I told one of my friends to tell him I liked him. She did, but now he pays no attention to me. He doesn't even look at me. What can I do to make him like me again? — Ignored in Indiana.

(A.) You have probably lost Geoff. But you have learned a useful lesson. Give a boy time to get used to you. Don't crowd him. Don't send messengers. If you have something, either good or bad, to say to him, say it yourself.

In the early stages of a friendship boys are easily scared away. You scared Geoff away. Don't do it to the next boy you like.

A CHANCE: (Q.) Sherry liked me first. She called me several times. Now I like her very much, but I'm not sure she still likes me. I don't get much chance to talk to her in school. The reason is that my friends are always with me.

How can I get away from them without being mean to them and get to know Sherry better? — Tied Up in New York.

(A.) You can tell your male friends the truth — that you want to talk with Sherry a while alone. They may rib you about her but that is all right. In secret they are probably thinking in the same terms about other girls. Someone has to take the first step and you seem to be the one.

Pomona stuns 12th-ranked Chino

Frank Elder honored at halftime

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — It was Frank Elder Night in Chino Friday night, but the Pomona High Red Devils didn't give Elder and the rest of the Cowboy fans much to cheer about.

On a night when Chino High dedicated its gym to its former veteran head coach and athletic director and renamed it the Frank M. Elder Gymnasium, Pomona stunned the 12th-ranked Cowboys with a 45-43 overtime upset.

It was Mike Yarborough's five-footer at the buzzer which made the Pomona fans go bananas, but it was the Red Devil deliberate ball-handling which really did the trick.

Coach Ed Taylor's Devils, who trailed by ten points during the game four times and by 12 once, installed their slow-down tactics midway through the third quarter and made the Cowboys seem helpless.

And on top of the stall, Pomona forced Chino to commit 25 turnovers in the game — three in the overtime period — with its quick defense.

"We really didn't want to slow the game down," stated coach Taylor after the celebrated victory. "I was hoping we could move a little faster than Chino, but our guards and forwards couldn't get downcourt quick enough to set up. And when they did get downcourt, Chino had them cut off.

"We've been playing like this for the last few games," the Red Devil skipper continued, "but we were getting the bad breaks."

It looked like Chino was just going to blow the Red Devils out of the gym when the Cowboys ran off to a 10-0 start on eight points by forward Tim Smith.

But the Devils fought back, forcing Chino into six turnovers in the first eight minutes, and ended up only four points back by the end of the first quarter.

That's when the Cowboys started to pour it on again, pumping in the first seven points of the second quarter to run to its biggest lead of 12 points, 23-12.

Then the Red Devils threw in their full court press, which really bothered the Cowboys.

Unable to get the ball across the midcourt line, Chino committed two quick turnovers and the Devils took advantage of them. Guard Derrick Thomas, who scored 16 points for Pomona, was on the scoring end of two stolen passes and the visitors were back in business.

By the time the first half had come to an end, Pomona found itself only four points back, 29-25.

Chino came out of the locker room after the halftime dedication to its former coach and tried once again to put the game out of reach.

The Cowboys ripped off the first six points of the third period and held their 10-point lead for the fourth and final time of the night, 35-25.

Pomona got to within six points when Taylor called for the slow-down offense. Thomas' field goal at the end of the third quarter put the Red Devils only two down going into the final eight minutes of play — or what was thought to be the final eight minutes. It ended up going an extra three minutes longer.

The "slow" game saw Chino only take five shots from the field in the last 11 minutes of so-called action, while Pomona only got off four shots in the fourth period and four more in the overtime.

Chino forward Mark Milton gave Chino a 41-39 lead with three minutes left in the fourth stanza with his 15-foot field goal, but Pomona reserve guard Doug Moore's two free throws 30 seconds later put the game into the deadlock.

Chino had a chance at taking the last game-winning shot when Cowboy guard Manny Delgado slipped into the Pomona offense and snagged a Red Devil pass. Coach Bob Elder immediately called time out with 1:39 left in the game to set up his Cowboys for the final shot of the game.

But the Red Devils, who were playing a zone defense against Chino's stall for time, quickly jumped into a man-to-man defense and snagged the ball from the Cowboys.

With the game clock ticking off the final 30 seconds, Moore took a pass, drove through the lane and scored — only to be cited for a traveling violation.

Chino's Bob Hairston attempted a 15-footer with three seconds remaining, but it came up short and Pomona's Jerome Holliman grabbed the rebound — sending the game into overtime.

Yarborough, who sat out most of the fourth quarter with a sore knee, reentered the game in the overtime to put the Devils out in front for the first time with the first bucket of the three-minute period.

Hairston dumped in two free throws with 1:37 left in the game to tie the game up for the third time of the night at 43-all.

Chino got another shot at pulling out a victory when Pomona forward John Wieman missed a 10-foot jumper with 32 seconds left, with Milton snagging the rebound.

But again the Red Devil defense forced the Cowboys into a turnover with 10 seconds remaining. Pomona immediately called time out to set up what finally turned out to be the winning basket.

After taking the ball inbounds, Pomona fed the ball to Yarborough at the deep post position and the 6-5 senior turned inside of his defender to swish the five-footer.

Surprise! Cavs win again

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

MONTCLAIR — The surprising Montclair Cavaliers continued to amaze their fans, frustrate their opponents and play sound basketball as they rallied past a reeling Claremont quintet, 48-46 before a packed Montclair home crowd Friday night.

The victory, coupled with losses by Chino and Garey, left Montclair as the only team near league-leading Ganesha in the San Antonio League basketball race as the Cavs (5-1) are one game out of first, and two games ahead of their nearest rivals.

It was the third straight loss for Jack Smith's discouraged Wolfpack, following an earlier streak that produced 14 consecutive wins and had Claremont ranked, at one time, as high as third in the CIF.

You can credit Friday night's win by Montclair to two "D's" — defense and discipline.

The game was close throughout, with neither side being able to open up a lead by more than six points. But Claremont enjoyed the lead, albeit slim, 90 per cent of the game.

After falling behind 10-6 in a ragged first quarter, the Cavaliers did not take the lead until just over five minutes remained. Tony Esquibel's hoop put Montclair ahead 39-38 and then Claremont started doing things unlike the Pack team that had accumulated that impressive winning streak — turning the ball over.

After Rip Sears gave Claremont the lead back with a 20-footer, Jim Brown hit a turn-around jumper from the free throw line and the Cavs went ahead to stay.

The next time down the floor, Claremont threw the ball away and Cavalier coach Lanny Moore quickly called time out to send his squad into a delay type offense. designed to pull Claremont out of its sticky 2-3 zone.

The Pack came out of it, but in a confused state, and Esquibel found Brown free under the basket for an easy lay-up. Another Claremont turnover gave the poised Cavaliers the ball, and after running the clock down some more, Esquibel drove the baseline for a looping lay-up. The Montclair fans went beserk as the Cavs went ahead 46-40.

Claremont, behind the excellent pressure shooting of Todd Ervin, made one furious rally at the end, with Ervin's 20-foot swisher bringng his team within two. Calling time-out immediately after the bucket, Claremont simply didn't have enough time to even commit an intentional foul and get the ball back as only one second remained on the clock.

Afterwards, a hoarse Moore was mobbed by Montclair well-wishers but he did manage to say, "We weren't very sharp in that first half but I'm proud of this team for its defense. That's where it counts."

It was a close game all the way, just as it figured to be. And in such contests, the team that makes the mistakes at the end will most likely come up short. Claremont did — make mistakes and come up short.

Mark Gosswiller supplied most of the offensive punch again for Montclair as the 6-6 center scored 25 points and 14 of his team's 18 in the first half. In that struggling first 16 minutes of play, Gosswiller kept his team in contention as the other Cav players were only 1-of-15 from the floor.

Montclair, which plays its final four SAL games on the road, completes first half league action Tuesday by hosting Upland. Claremont will host another frustrated team, Chino, at the Pack Pavilion.

Lakers romp over Bullets

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Sharpshooting Gail Goodrich sank 41 points and added nine assists Friday night as the Los Angeles Lakers riddled the Capital Bullets 143-124 in a battle of NBA divisional leaders.

The final point total was a season high for the Lakers, and their torrid shooting effort came against the third-best defensive team in the league. Los Angeles had scored 101 points by the end of the third quarter, two more than the Bullets have averaged giving up for an entire game this year.

The 6-foot Goodrich, scoring equally from the outside and on lay-ups, connected on 17 of 25 field goal attempts. He poured in 13 points in each of the first three periods and sat out the last 9:34 of the contest.

The Lakers, playing again without the injured Jerry West, also got strong performances from guard Jim Price and rookie center Kermit Washington. Washington hit for a career high of 18 points while Price also had 18 to go along with a career high 12 assists.

Ex-Laker Archie Clark, who kept the Bullets in the game in the first half, paced Capital with 21 points. Manny Leaks added 18 for the Central Division-leading Bullets, who are playing without injured center Wes Unseld.

Los Angeles led 35-25 at the end of the first quarter, but Capital surged into a 47-45 lead with 4:48 remaining in the half. Goodrich rallied Los Angeles to a 17-5 blitz as the Lakers took a 10-point lead at the half.

The Lakers moved 2 ½ games ahead of idle Golden State in the Pacific Division, while the Bullets' lead over Atlanta shrank to six games.

Bruins aren't vengeful, says Wooden (oh, yeah?)

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It will be a humbled, polite UCLA basketball team taking the floor Saturday night in hopes of politely destroying Notre Dame's one-week stay atop the national rankings.

The Bruins, who had their three-year, 88-game winning streak snapped in a 71-70 loss at Notre Dame last Saturday, will not be out for revenge, according to mild-mannered coach John Wooden.

KTLA (5) 8:40 p.m.

"I'm just glad we've got the opportunity to play them again so soon," said Wooden. "Would we like to win more impressively than they did? Sure we would."

Guard Tommy Curtis, whose constant flow of comments during the game angered some Notre Dame players, is sorry his boyish excitement was taken the wrong way.

"I talk and laugh and clap," Curtis said. "People don't understand I do these things because I really dig playing this game, playing for UCLA. And really, it's only a game, isn't it?"

Such talk might be considered heretical in South Bend, where The Game was taken as a sign that "God made Notre Dame No. 1," as many gymnasium banners proclaimed. The Irish have since improved their record to 12-0 with victories over Kansas and St. Francis on the road.

UCLA, 13-1 and relegated to the No. 2 spot in UPI's national rankings, was expected to have no trouble in dispatching Santa Clara Friday night in a tuneup for the Notre Dame game.

Oddsmakers have made the Bruins a 14-point favorite in the rematch, largely because of their record at Pauley Pavillion —124-2.

Wooden, like his players, has taken the defeat in stride, offering hope that "adversity in most areas makes a person grow stronger. Maybe we haven't had enough advertsity."

Guard Pete Trogovich sums up the Bruins' philosophy.

"It's all right as long as it doesn't last longer than a week," he said. "And I don't think it will. Then everything will be back to normal and we'll be No. 1 again."

Kite flies high; leads AWSDO

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Young Tom Kite, making the most of limited opportunities, shot a two-under-par 70 on another summer-like day Friday for a two-shot lead over Ben Crenshaw after two rounds of the $170,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

Crenshaw and Kite, former teammates at the University of Texas, had matching seven-under-par 65s in the opening round on the easier North course at Torrey Pines but found the going a little tougher on the longer South layout.

Crenshaw, who lipped at least a half-dozen birdie putt attempts, wound up with an even-par 72 for a 36-hole score of seven under par 137. Kite was at 135 and said he was more than happy with his position.

Local youngster John Schroeder had a 6-under 66, the best score on the South course, for a 36-hole total of six-under 138. That put him in a tie with Bobby Nichols, Leonard Thompson, and Homero Blancas. Nichols had 69, Thompson a 71 and Blancas a 72, all on the South course.

Mike Morley shot a seven-under 65 on the North course to join a large group tied at five-under 139. In the group were Gene Littler, George Archer, Dave Stockton, Jim Simons, Tommy Sanderson, Rod Curl, Bobby Mitchell, Cesar Sanudo and Peter Davison.

Billy Casper yeaded a group tied at 140, including Miller Barber, Chi Chi Rodriquez and former U.S. Open champ Orville Moody.

Kite, who has been chasing Crenshaw since both were junior golfers in Austin, Tex., had four birdies and two bogies on his card of 37-33.

He never was closer than 11 feet on any birdie putt attempt and said, "I think I got the most out of the round that I could have."

Crenshaw, who couldn't miss in the first round, had all sorts of putting problems during the second round.

He had three birdies and three bogies and his longest putt was a 10-footer on the 18th.

"I guess the greens got back at me today," said Crenshaw. "I had a lot of good tries for birdies but the ball just wouldn't go in."

The cut for the final two rounds—both of which will be played on the South course— was set at 143, one-under par, and 74 players made it. Among those who barely survived was defending champion Bob Dickson.

Among players not making the cut were Bruce Crampton, who won nearly $300,000 a year ago, Al Geiberger, Phil Rodgers, Dave Hill, and 1973 Master champion Tommy Aaron.

Theismann to play for 'Skins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Redskins have acquired the rights to Joe Theismann, former star quarterback at Notre Dame, from the Miami Dolphins, coach George Allen announced Friday.

In exchange, the Dolphins will get the Redskins' firstround draft choice in 1976.

Allen said the 24-year-old Theismann, who has played the last three years with the Toronto Argonauts, "adds another dimension to our offense. He has just enough experience to help us in 1974."

The coach said Billy Kilmer will remain the team's No. 1 quarterback. Sonny Jurgensen will undergo an operation on his sore knee next week.

Theismann completed 382 of 679 passes for 6,093 yards and 40 touchdowns in his three years with Toronto. His three-year rushing totals were 172 carries for 1,054 yards, a 6.1 yard average and three touchdowns.

Giants nearly slip

By TOM FAHEY

LA VERNE — Ganesha's Broderick Hunter's three-point play with 25 seconds left in the game, enabled the Giants to squeeze by Damien's Spartans, 84-79, Friday night at Damien and run their record to 6-0.

The Spartans, in losing their sixth straight league game, staged a furious comeback that had the crowd going wild. They had trailed by as many as 13 points but never lost their poise and kept coming at the taller Giants.

The final four minutes saw the game go from an easy Ganesha win, to a hard fought struggle.

The Giants were on top at the time 73-64.

Damien's John Pignotti dropped in a twisting lay-up which was followed by teammate Larry Pekarcik dropping in an eight-footer over Cleve Porter.

Bill Karr's twenty-five footer put the Spartans to within three, with three minutes remaining on the clock.

Damien moved into a tie on a three point play by Pekarcik. Pekarcik's score came after a brilliant move that left the Giants bewildered. And so the Spartans, who had not been in a tie for the lead since 4-4, were now deadlocked with 60 seconds remaining in the contest.

But then they fell victim once again to the fact that Ganesha could outrebound them without even jumping.

Hunter grabbed the rebound of a Wilson miss and dropped it in for the score. But Wilson still led all scorers with 32 points.

Pignotti came right back with a hoop that once again sent the game into a deadlock with 34 seconds left.

Ganesha came down and Wilson attempted a five-footer that was short. But once again, Hunter grabbed the rebound and tossed in the easy shot. To compound the Spartan's problem, Pignotti was charged with a foul on the play and when Hunter converted, the Giants were on top 82-79 with 25 seconds left.

Damien, now down by three, hed to try to throw up a quick one but it went wild, and Ganesha hauled in the rebound. While the wspartans tried to press, Wilson went racing down the court and after a pass by Hunter, scored the final points of the game.

The game saw two different styles of play. Damien relied on sharp team play with most of the shots coming from the outside to stay away from the big Giants. Ganesha on the other hand scored most of their points from within the nine and twelve inch range.

Scots rally to win

UPLAND — The Highlanders aren't known as the scourge of the West but they're feared by the other San Antonio League teams.

Orien Ogg, Stu DuVall and Curt Oldenkamp combined for 74 points as Upland upset Garey, 83-73, Friday night in the Highlander gym.

Coach Paul Trautwein's high scoring trio spearheaded an assault that saw the Scots outscore the Vikings, 12-2, in the final two minutes and 42 seconds of the game.

"This is an important win for us," said Trautwein. "We have four losses but if we can keep winning we may end up second or third."

The combined output of Ogg (20 points), DuVall (25) and Oldenkamp (29) totaled one more point than the entire Garey team could muster.

"Upland is much better than its record indicates," said Garey coach Mike Wells prior to the tipoff. "They have good shooting, they work hard and hustle all the time. In fact, I fear them more-so than some of the other teams."

Although the Scots (2-4) led most of the way, the contest was tied eight times with the lead changing hands 11 other times.

Garey's (-3) biggest lead was four points, 8-4, whereas the Highlanders' biggest advantage, prior to the late spurt, was seven points, 50-43, midway through the third period.

Trailing 61-55 at the start of the final stanza, Garey's Billy Evans, who finished with 28 points and three assists, rattled off eight points by the 4:30 mark to give the Vikings a short-lived 69-67 advantage.

But Oldenkamp retaliated with a pair of buckets to regain the lead for the Scots, 71-69. The Vikings' Gary Carpenter knotted the contest with a two-pointer, 71-71, only to have the Scots score 12 unanswered markers.

DuVall's field goal with 2:09 to play gave Upland a 73-71 margin with the remainder of the points coming from the free throw line. Oldenkamp added two, Ogg four, Mike Matusewicz two and Darryl Mosher two.

Upland actually won the game from the charity stripe as the Vikings made more field goals 31-30.

Trautwein's club, which suffered three of their four SAL losses at the foul line, converted 23 of 33 free throws, 10 of 15 in the fourth stanza, while Garey made 11 of 15.

"It feels good to win one from the foul line after losing three that way," concluded the Upland skipper.

Panthers win, gain second

Chaffey College moved into a tie for second place with Grossmont in the Mission Conference Friday night with an 83-69 victory over San Bernardino.

The loss knocked the Indians into a tie for fourth place with Citrus, which was a 75-58 loser to Palomar.

Both Citrus and Chaffey return to action tonight. The Panthers visit Grossmont, while the Owls travel to Southwestern. Both Chaffey and Grossmont are 5-2.

In other games, front running Riverside edged Grossmont, 85-86, and San Diego topped Saddleback, 63-59. Riverside hosts San Bernardino tonight.

LATEST PADRES OWNER — Ray Kroc (L), board chairman of McDonald's Corp., is introduced at press conference by E.J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, San Diego Padres president, as club's new owner.

Padre owner is a dynamo

By RAY MEANS

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The lengthy battle to keep the San Diego Padres baseball team here appeared ended Friday with purchase of the club by Ray Kroc, 71, chairman of the board of McDonald's hamburger chain.

Mayor Pete Wilson made the announcement and said an agreement for use of the San Diego Stadium had been reached earlier in the day. He said $84 million in suits against the national League would be dropped when approval of the purchase was received.

Kroc, admitting he is buying the club as an "expensive hobby" and doesn't plan to make money, said he will not move the franchise.

Kroc said he had talked by phone with National League president Charles (Chub) Feeney Thursday and had the impression there would be no problem in gaining approval of National League owners next week.

The announcement marks the third time the club has been purchased from financially troubled C. Arnholt Smith since the middle of the 1973 season.

Washington, D.C., grocer Joseph Danzansky announced purchase of the club for the nation's capital last spring for $12 million. That is when the city of San Diego began court action.

The sale was approved by the other owners but fell through last December when Danzansky failed to guarantee indemnities resulting from the move.

The Padres then were sold to a nine-member Los Angeles group headed by Hollywood Race Track board chairman Marjorie Everett, but the owners rejected the deal.

Kroc said he read Wilson's comments following the rejection that the National League owners were "arrogant" and only wanted to move the club from San Diego. Kroc arrived in the city Tuesday and concluded whirlwind negotiations with Smith.

Wilson flew from Sacramento, Calif., Thursday, held a series of meetings with Kroc, city staff and the City Council, and concluded the city's end of the agreement.

The Padres have finished last in each of their five seasons in the National League but showed some hope this year with he acquisition of Glen Beckert, Willie McCovey and Bobby Tolan.

"It's fun to be with somebody at the bottom," Kroc said in vowing to build a winner. "Anticipation is better than realization, and at 71 I can tell you that's true. Getting there's more fun than having gotten there."

Saying baseball has become sterile and needs adrenalin, Kroc noted he would work to institute several changes such as games starting at 4 or 5 p.m. and a special stadium club for season ticket holders.

He plans to contact bus companies and restaurants to work out package deals which would include a box seat, dinner, a cocktail and transportation to and from the game.

"We plan to do for San Diego what the Packers did in putting Green Bay on the map," he said. "Baseball needs fans and we'll break our necks to cooperate with them.

"We want youngsters to grow with us and we'll get good, clean, All-American ballplayers they can grow up with."

Kroc said he had no immediate plans to change the team's name from "Padres" and that the next step would be to hire a new manager.

Sports news in brief

GEORGE FOREMAN and Ken Norton will meet for Foreman's heavyweight crown in Mar. 26, in Caracas, Venezuela.

Foreman, under pressure to defend his crown, agreed to fight Norton a week ago but the Caracas site was not announced until Friday.

NANCY GUNTER rallied to post a 6-7, 6-2, 6-1 win over Rosemary Casals in their quarterfinal match in the Virginia Slims Pro Tennis Tourney in Mission Viejo Friday.

The victory earns Miss Gunter a shot at Billie Jean King in today's semi-final round. Friday's winner of the Kerry Melville-Francoise Durr match was slated to play Chris Evert in today's other matchup.

DEFENSE LINE Coach Tom Lovat was named head football coach at the University of Utah Friday. Lovat takes over from Bill Mee, who resigned under pressure three weeks ago.

REACTION TO the $5,000 fine levied by the New York Boxing Commission against Muhammad Ali provided the only excitement from the fighter's training camp Friday.

Ali's trainer Angelo Dundee was angered by the fine, as was Bob Arum, the ex-champ's lawyer. Should the Commission attempt to collect the fine, Arum said he would take it to court.

Joe Frazier, also docked for his part in their televised scuffle, said he would also use legal action to prevent collection of the fine.

JAN KODES and Arthur Ashe both defeated their foes Friday and advanced to the semifinals of the $100,000 U.S. Indoor Pro Tennis Championships at Philadelphia.

TOM CECCHINI, head coach at Xavier University the past two seasons, was named Friday as a new assistant football coach at Iowa.

MARK ROTH took the lead Friday in concluding match play to decide today's five finalists in the $55,000 King Louie Bowling Tourney at Kansas City.

TONY WALDROP ran the first sub-four minute mile in Millrose Games history Friday with a time of 3:59.7. Waldrop defeated favorite Marty Liquori.

Almost upstaging Waldrop was 15-year-old Mary Decker of Orange, Calif., who led from start to finish in the Women's 1,000-yard run. Miss Decker's time was 2:27.4.

Top Bulldog scorer quits

REDLANDS — James Laudermilk, a 6-foot-5 sophomore forward, who leads the University of Redlands basketball team in scoring, has quit amidst controversy.

Laudermilk listed as his reasons for quitting the team a low grade point average, which he wants to improve, and dissatisfaction with the coaching philosophy of head coach Gary Smith.

Laudermilk was averaging 15 points a game for the Bulldogs. Dan Moon, a 6-foot-6 junior, will start in Laudermilk's spot when Rediands hosts Occidental tonight. The Bulldogs are 8-7 overall and 2-2 in Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) play.

The Raiders sank to a 1-5 mark in Montview League play.

Chaffey had better luck in its Citrus Belt League battle with Eisenhower, besting the host school by a 79-65 margin.

The Tigers put together a very balanced scoring attack to upend Ike, with four starters hitting in double figures. Top Tiger point-getter was Rick Antoni with 18.

Ray Mendoza added 16 for Chaffey, who opened a 21-13 first quarter margin and went on from there to post the win.

Chaffey kept its title hopes in the CBL alive with the win, advancing to a 4-2 loop mark. The Tigers are 11-6 mark in Citrus Belt action.

Bruce Sider paced Lancer scoring with 25 points, Sam Shumaker hit for 20, and Norm Moline added 16. It was the biggest margin of victory this season for Western, who now sport a fine 15-2 overall mark.

Walnut shakes off Bonita's upset bid

By TIM CLARK
P-B Correspondent

LA VERNE—The third quarter. It has plagued coach Remi Tremblay's Bonita High Bearcats all season. And once again it did not fail to live up to its disastrous reputation on Friday night.

Bonita enjoyed a 34-31 lead at the half and let it slip away once again, finally falling to powerful Walnut, 63-50.

Bonita had played well throughout the game until it reached the menacing third period of the game. Kirk Christ led the charge for Walnut as he dumped in eight points, and grabbed eight rebounds for the Mustangs.

Walnut only hit on eight of its 17 field goal attempts, but this was super compared with Bonita. The Bearcats did not make a single field goal in the third quarter, misfiring on 14 shots.

Walnut had the game pretty well in hand at the end of the stanza, holding a 48-38 lead, in rolling to its sixth Hacienda League win without a loss.

Bonita got off to a roaring start over the visiting Mustangs. It held a 14-4 lead until the Mustangs regrouped to trail only by four at the end of the first quarter, 20-16.

The second quarter saw Walnut challenge the Bearcats several times, but came up a little short as Bonita scrapped for the 34-31 edge at the half.

H.P. Drake led the Bearcats in the first half with 12 points, 10 rebounds, and a 60 per cent shooting percentage. Lance Parrish led Walnut wih 12 poins, 8 rebounds, and a 66 per cent shooting percentage.

Walnut wrapped up the game early in the fourth quarter, as Christ led the final charge. Christ, who had been stopped in the first half, wound up the game with 22 points. He made good on 11 of 20 shots, gathered in 16 rebounds, and passed off for three assists. Steve Will shot for 16 points with 10 rebounds, while Parrish finished with 15 points and 17 caroms.

UCLA belts Santa Clara

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Seventeen-year-old freshman Marques Johnson scored 20 points Friday night as UCLA tuned up for its rematch with top-ranked Notre Dame by drubbing Santa Clara 96-54.

The 6-5, 212-pound Johnson hit on 10 of 11 shots from the floor and was 7-7 in the second half when he played only 11 ½ minutes.

Johnson, who plays guard and forward, had seen only brief action this season and was averaging 5.2 points per game.

Center Bill Walton had 14 points for UCLA, scoring on five of nine field goal attempts.

The Broncos, who chose to play a slowdown game in the first half, were led by forward Jerry Bellotti with 12 points, while Glen Hubbard, Jay Helman and Jim Romey added eight points apiece.

Forward Keith Wilkes scored 13 for UCLA, while Dave Meyers had 12, and Pete Trgovich and Andre McCarter had 10 each.

The victory pushed UCLA's season mark to 14-1 and dropped the Broncos to 6-11.

The Bruins were impressive on offense and defense, converting 18 of 29 shots for 62 per cent in the first half, while limiting Santa Clara to just seven field goals in the half— the first of which came nearly eight minutes into the game. UCLA led 41-20 at halftime.

Lettermen present techniques

Chaffey holds baseball clinic

ONTARIO — The 1974 Chaffey High varsity baseball team will present its Second Annual Baseball Clinic Feb. 9.

The returning letterman will present various theories and techniques and drills regarding baseball, and the coaching staff at Chaffey will be on hand to assist in any way possible. Homer Thompson, and Tiger trainer, and possibly some professional baseball players will also be in attendance.

The purpose of the clinic is two-fold in that it is the desire of the baseball program to purchase additional baseball equipment and, second, to give aid to any youngster who is interested in baseball. There will be a $1 fee charged for the entire clinic.

Non-Little Leaguers, Little Leguers, Senior Little Leaguers, Pony Leaguers, Colt Leaguers, coaches and fathers are cordially invited to attend.

Registration will be held Saturday, Feb. 9 at Payne Field on the Chaffey campus at 9:30 a.m. through 4 p.m.

In case of rain the clinic will be held in the Chaffey cafeteria. The Pony League Snack Bar will be open for lunch for those who do not bring a sack lunch.

Angels invite Kenyon to their training camp

SAN DIMAS —Frank Kenyon, an All-San Antonio League selection in 1970 and '71, has been one of our players to be invited to the California Angels training camp in Holtville, general manager Harry Dalton announced.

The other three include veteran pitchers Dave Leonhard and Dick Selma, along with rookie shortstop Orlando Ramirez.

Kenyon, who pitched for Bonita High in his prep days, posted a 6-2 record in his junior year for the Bearcats and was voted to the league's first team. Then in his senior year at Bonita, Frank ended the season with a 7-3 record and made the all-league second team.

After graduating from Bonita, Kenyon played for Idaho Falls of the Pioneer League (rookie classification) and saw action in 12 games. He finished that season with a 2-1 record and a 1.98 earned run average while recording a total of 38 strike outs in 41 innings.

In 1972, Kenyon played for Quad Cities of the Midwest League (Class A) and pitched in 24 games, posting a 10-11 record and a 2.73 earned run average (fifth best in the league). That year he had 133 strike outs in 165 innings.

Battles Hornets tonight

MSAC desperate

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

FULLERTON — Mt. San Antonio College tries to put a halt to a three-game losing streak and in the process climb back into the South Coast Conference basketball race when it meets Fullerton in a 7:30 game tonight.

The Mounties share 1-3 conference records and third place with the Hornets, who have found the first round of SCC play equally rugged.

Fullerton, however, is three games above, .500 at 12-9 for the season. MSAC is 7-13.

An abundance of turnovers and an icy shooting touch from the field and the free throw line have contributed to MSAC's fall after opening with a stunning 85-76 victory over San Diego Mesa.

More than a little frustrated at this point, coach Gene Victor's club needs a victory — for morale, if for no other reason.

In four conference games, center Gary Nash, the 6-foot-10 sophomore, continues to lead the team in shooting and rebounding with 19.3 and 13.5 averages, respectively.

Freshman forward Gary Melugin with a 12.5 scoring average and sophomore guard Steve Arthur with a 10.5 average complement Nash in point production.

Since making his first appearance 10 games ago, Melugin has missed scoring in double figures only twice. He was averaging nearly 14 points a game until a lapse against Cerritos when he was held to three points by the tight Falcon zone defense.

Four Hornet players are averaging in double figures in conference play, led by 6-foot-4 forward Jeff Hutton, a 175-pound sophomore.

Besides Hutton, guards Mike Cannon and Mike Farra have double figure averages at 13 points a game, and forward Kevin Flynn is averaging 12.7.

Nash leads the conference in rebounding with a 15.3 average. Hutton is far off that pace with a eight per game.

In other conference encounters tonight, Cerritos visits San Diego Mesa and Orange Coast hosts Santa Ana.

Leos' streak threatened by Whittier five

LA VERNE —The Leopards of La Verne College face their sternest test of the basketball season tonight.

The Leos, 3-2, have won their last two games. But tonight they take on the team generally accorded the title, "best in the conference."

Defending champion and current co-leader Whittier, 4-0, will play the Leopards at Bonita High at 8:15 p.m. It's one of only two conference games in a thin schedule.

Both Claremont-Mudd and Pomona-Pitzer are on a semester break. The Sagehen are off until Feb. 8 when they play at Azusa Pacific. The Stags are in Southern Utah on Feb. 7.

Tonight's other games include Azusa Pacific at Biola (8 p.m.), Occidental (4-0) at Redlands (2-2), and LIFE at Caltech (0-8) in a non-conference affair.

La Verne, holding third place all by itself, faces a Whittier team that is coming off a near upset at the hands of Pomona-Pitzer Wednesday night.

Coach Art Bias was among the spectators Wednesday night. Bias said he was not surprised at the Sagehens' showing. "They've done it before," he said, "but I know we're going to have our hands full."

"We'll try and contain them if we can, especially their guards," he continued. We'll also pay special attention to (Paul) Caldwell if we can without weakening ourselves somewhere else."

The Poets' guards, Al Hardin and Jack Smoot, were all-conference players last year as was forward Bernie Hoskin. Caldwell is a 6-5 junior forward who transferred from Los Angeles City College.

Latest SCIAC statistics show Hardin the top scorer with an 18.1 points-per-game average and Caldwell second with an even 17 and Smoot fourth at at even 16 points-per-game.

Snowdon hauled off to Detroit police station

PHOTOGRAPHER PHOTOGRAPHED — Lord Snowdon, shown on a Detroit photo assignment, takes pictures of a funeral service for a slain policeman. Later he was taken to police headquarters when he was unable to produce proper press credentials.

DETROIT (UPI) — The photographer claimed he was working on a feature story for the London Sunday Times but when he failed to produce proper press credentials he was hauled off to the police station.

Anthony Charles Robert Armstrong-Jones, the Earl of Snowdon, was taking pictures of two officers making an arrest on a downtown street when the two policemen asked him for identification Wednesday.

Lord Snowdon's passport had been left at his hotel, and all he could produce was an invalid 1972 British press pass. He was taken to the police station, where a report was written by the officers concerning one "Tony Charles Snowdon" who, the report said, claimed to be a press photographer but was unable to produce proof.

The report was noted by a sergeant who called in three other administrators, all of whom agreed the name was familiar. Finally Police Commissioner Philip G. Tannian was consulted.

A few moments later all was straightened out and Lord Snowdon was issued the proper press credentials.

Later Tannian explained in a statement the Earl was brought in by "young police officers reasonably new to the job." He said if Lord Snowdon's credentials "didn't check out, the officers would have been right.

"We issued him temporary press credentials. I talked to him for a few minutes. He was on his way."

Ban on spray glue lifted--no hazard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission said today it will lift its ban on millions of cans of spray glue ordered off the market five months ago as a potential birth defects hazard.

The commission said the ban will end on March 1, unless new information is developed before then to make it change its mind. It invited the public to submit any such data to it.

The 13 brands of spray adhesives, manufactured by the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. and the Borden Co., were banned last August on the basis of a study made by Dr. J. Rodman Seely of the University of Oklahoma. He said two malformed infants had been born to parents who were using the spray glue in "foil art" —a hobby involving use of the glue to make collages and other art works.

The commission said today, however, it had completed an extensive review of Seely's study as well as independent studies and laboratory tests involving animals and concluded that "the named spray adhesives should no longer be regarded as 'banned hazardous substances' under the Federal Hazardous Substances Act ..."

Commission Chairman Richard O. Simpson told a news conference that research reports submitted to the panel "were all overwhelmingly in favor of lifting the ban." He added that this did not mean there was no doubt since "this is one of those cases where no one is 100 per cent sure."

Simpson added that he would not be concerned if his daughter used the spray.

Officials of the 3M Company could give no estimate of the amount of money lost because of the ban, except to say that it was "in the millions." They declined further comment pending study of the decision but said no legal action against the commission was contemplated. pickup 5th

The ban was the first such action the commission had taken other than its continuing monitoring of toys since it was formed last spring. The action was washed in controversy from the start, with industry claiming the panel had acted too hastily.

17th century stocks a cure for littering?

By STEPHEN COLFORD

MILLBORO, Va. (UPI) — Fearing their scenic little community was fast becoming an oversize garbage pit, the Ruritan Club of Bath County looked to the 17th Century for a solution.

The 30 members of the club have unanimously endorsed a resolution asking that the wooden stocks used in colonial America be brought back as a punishment showing "righteous scorn and indignation" toward anyone littering the county with cans and bottles.

Ed Walters, chairman of the special committee on the problem, explained:

"For years the Ruritans have tried to educate the people and have helped clean up litter. But this year it seems the problem is as bad if not worse than ever before.

"A few members suggested that maybe the stocks might be considered cruel and unusual punishment," Walters said. "But maybe thats just what's needed to make people stop and realize what they're doing."

The Ruritans spurned more mundane answers to litter such as recycling, increased policing and stiffer fines for the tongue-in-cheek suggestion of reviving the use of stocks—wooden contraptions that bind a person's hands, ankles and neck into a slightly bent posture of humility and contrition.

"This is a rural county with sparse population," Walters said. "We've got mountains and streams and parks and some of it has been designated as scenic areas.

"But it's both the tourists and the locals who are causing all this litter trouble," he said. "To be honest most of it comes from the people who live here.

"One weekend we went out and picked up 24 bushels of trash from just a 1.3 mile stretch of road. Picking up cans is a good experience spirutually but it doesn't give you a very good picture of your fellow man."

Both Walters and Ruritan president Ashby Rusmisel concede their idea is "rather outlandish," but say serious consideration should be given to the stocks if they are judged legal punishment.

"We sent our resolution for the stocks to the county board of supervisors, the commonwealth's attorney and two state legislators," Walters said. "The decision is up to them."

Admiralty Island bears aggressive

KODIAK, Alaska (UPI) — Admiralty Island brown bears are more aggressive than their Kodiak brethren, according to Alaska Fish and Game Department experts.

Biologists report that Admiralty Island brownies snared, though not injured, will charge a person approaching them, but Kodiaks will try to move away.

Admiralty Island is in Southeast Alaska. Kodiak bears are found on Kodiak Island and on the nearby mainland.

Yank freed from Syria jail claims he was tortured

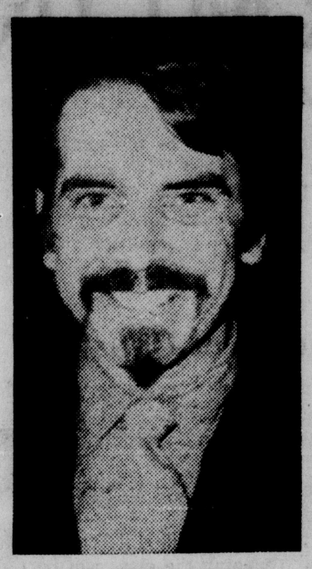
NEW YORK (UPI) — An American student released this week after spending two years in a Syrian jail arrived home Thursday night and said, "Although I was treated brutally, mercilessly and cruelly, I hold no grudge against the Syrians or the Arabs."

Jonathan Bates, 32, a graduate student in sociology at the New School for Social Research in New York, came in on a flight from London and slipped out a back door.

He said at a news conference in London earlier that he was arrested in Damascus and never told why he was being kept in solitary confinement, never given a trial and continually tortured before he signed a false confession.

"The past two years have been hell," he said. "It has been a boring and empty period in my life and I am extremely grateful that it is now all over and I am going back home.

"I spent the entire time sharing a cell in crowded conditions with 35 other prisoners, apart from a seven-month period when I was in solitary confinement.



JONATHAN BATES

Women do have more headaches

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women do indeed have more headaches than men, the Newspaper Advertising Bureau has concluded.

A study by the bureau showed that 76 per cent of the women participating in the study used headache remedies during the four-week test period. By comparison, only 63 per cent of the men involved in the study used such remedies during the same period.

Pull the plug on car pools

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Unquestionably the most dismaying prospect of the increasing gasoline shortage, not to mention oil shortage, is the inevitable organizing of car pools throughout Los Angeles County, so that four or five people can travel to the same office or factory for the same fuel expenditure that was formerly used for each individually.

The Auto Club of Southern California is organizing some such program, and all I predict for it is disaster. Put four strangers in a car headed for Los Angeles at 7 a.m., and the first murder will occur before they reach the Barranca Street off-ramp.

Speaking personally, I am not my customary jovial self at 7 a.m. and I know a lot of other people who aren't, either. I do not want to scrunch down in a back seat with a chattery secretary and a fat systems analyst and be driven along the freeway for an hour by a cigar-smoking sporting goods salesman. What I want at 7 a.m. is four cups of black coffee, the sports page, and dead silence. What I will get will be giggling accounts of office romances, ponderous perorations by the salesman solving the world's problems, and bawdy jokes and detailed discussions of business conditions by the systems analyst.

The return trip may be better. You are now awake, the day's work is behind you, and you've had a couple of martinis. I will never know, however. I will be the guy you see standing by the Spring Street on-ramp, hitchhiking my way home.

People actively interested in promoting car pools talk glibly of heightening the sense of community, getting to know friends and neighbors better, getting to relax, meet new people, learn how to get along and communicate with others. Terribly jolly. But what if one member of the pool admires Nixon and the other thinks McGovern got a dirty deal. Maybe both fall in love with the secretary. Maybe she's married but goes out with her boss (is that delicate?) but her mother is thinking of moving in with them, and she thinks she may be pregnant, and tells her fellow travelers (prisoners) all about it every day, a four-wheel "As the World Turns" with giggles and tears.

A more realistic view was taken by psychologist Chaytor Mason who likened car pools to lifeboats leaving a sinking ship with people who don't know each other thrust together. Personally I'd go down with the ship.

Another psychologist, Dr. Bernard Barber, sees car pools as "extended families." If that doesn't bring the movement to a screeching halt, nothing will. Can you imagine starting off to Los Angeles every morning of the week with a nagging wife in curlers and a gaggle of noisy, yelling youngsters fighting over the comic books and demanding "When are we going to be there?"

If car pools are really the answer to the fuel shortage and if the movement catches on, the highway patrol will have a lot fewer traffic accidents to investigate but a lot more murders.

Assembly OKs giving schools greater say

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly has unanimously voted to permit school districts to start new education programs or activities without having to get state permission.

The measure (AB27) by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, was sent to the Senate Thursday on a 62-0 vote.

The bill implements the 1972 voter-approved ballot measure, Prop. 5, which was aimed at giving local schools greater say in their educational affairs. Districts currently must get permission from the state Department of Education for activities not expressedly spelled out in the law.

Another Vasconcellos education-related bill (AB2586) cleared the Assembly Thursday on a 52-10 vote and went to the Senate.

It changes the system for appointments by the governor to the Community Colleges Board of Governors and the Trustees of the state University and Colleges. Instead of the governor making appointments subject to two-thirds confirmation by the Senate, the appointments would be made from a list of five candidates submitted by a new nominating committee.

The Assembly also defeated another Vasconcellos measure requiring local school boards to have a student, a teacher and one other employe from the district as nonvoting members. The vote was 2-42.

Vasconcellos said his bill would give "substantive and symbolic" representation to the boards by the persons most directly affected.

Opposing the measure was Assembly Education Committee Chairman Leroy Greene, D-Sacramento, who said Students, teachers and employes already are able to speak before the local boards, and this would add nothing.

State tomato growers have bumper year

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California growers produced 4.8 million tons of processing tomatoes valued at $199 million in 1973, according to state agriculture statistics.

The 1973 crop was just under the record 1968 production of 4.9 million tons valued at $203 million.

California produces 80 per cent of the tomatoes for processing in the nation. They are used for juice, canning, paste, puree and sauces.

The outlook for 1974, according to State Agriculture Director C.B. Christensen is good. "There is every indication that the 1974 season could establish new records, if the weather cooperates and all goes according to present grower plans," he said.

J. F. Semichatsnov. Deputy Foreign Trade minister, also denied as "false and unseemly" allegations that the Soviet Union was increasing its oil exports "behind the backs of Arab countries."

SHEPHERD TENDS HIS FLOCK—During World War II the Rev. Richard Irvin rode his bicycle to save fuel and track down backsliding church members. Today, the 59-year-old pedaling preacher has answered the energy call and again is ferreting out sinners on his two-wheeler.

Preacher checks his flock by bike

By RONALD L. LITTLEPAGE

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — During World War II the Rev. Richard Irvin rode his used bicycle with coaster brakes to save fuel and track down backsliding church members.

Today, the 59-year-old pedaling preacher has answered the energy call and again is hopping on his two-wheeler to ferret out sinners.

"I had a bicycle on hand and when the announcement of the limitation of fuel came I began to ride not just for pleasure but for the visitation of my church members and their homes," he said. "It makes me feel better physically and it seems like I have a more healthy communication with everybody I meet along the way. There are days now that the car neprospective members—just any of the regular visitation programs I have. I get on my bicycle and do it."

After riding in the cushioned comfort of an automobile for three decades, the Rev. Irvin admits it was more difficult to resume bike riding than in 1942 when he bought his "plain vanilla" bike for $7.50.

"It's a little more an adjustment to make now,' he said.

"Then there was a uniting of thoughts and a blending of efforts to be patriotic and cooperative.

"There didn't seem to be ver leaves the garage."

On most days the slightly balding minister slips his shiny 10-speed racer out of the garage and pumps his way along the shady streets that crisscross the neighborhood where most of Oakwood United Methodist Church's 299 members live.

The Rev. Irvin encouraged his congregation to conserve energy, and although there hasn't exactly been a run on local bike shops, he knows the word is getting out.

"They are very pleased that I am interested in practicing what I preach," he said.

"I visit the regular members, those who are sick, any question about a shortage as there are questions now among many elements of our society that maybe this isn't for real.

"We were into the rationing system hardly before we knew it. And that's the difference. It wasn't as gradual then as it is now."

FTC alters program calling for big advertisers to back up claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has revamped the program under which it makes big advertisers back up their claims, cutting down on the number of ads that will be questioned and reducing the amount of unfavorable publicity to which some companies have been subjected.

At the same time, advertisers which are challenged will have only 30 days to reply instead of the present 60 and will probably have a harder time keeping what they consider to be trade secrets from being made public. The agency also said the changes should speed up the whole process.

The program, which began two and a half years ago, has triggered challenges, sometimes industry-wide, to ads involving cars, air conditioners, electric shavers, TV sets, cough and cold remedies, shampoos, and other products. But only four false advertising complaints—three involving cars— have ever emerged from the process.

And the program has been criticized by both advertisers and consumer groups as one which produces a mound of paperwork but little useful information—although the FTC claims its preventive force is significant.

Under the new procedure, the FTC will no longer announce which ads it is seeking substantiation for until the companies involved have answered its questions.

Under the old process the agency announced which ads were being investigated, resulting sometimes in unfavorable publicity for the products involved both then and a second time when the replies were made public.

In addition "greater selectivity" will be used in deciding which ads are to be questioned, and the advertisers will be notified in advance of any adverse conclusions the FTC has reached and invited to comment before the whole matter is made public.

J. Thomas Rosch, director of the FTC's bureau of consumer protection, was asked if he thought the public would suffer from not knowing in advance which ads are being questioned. "No, not at all...that's certainly not the intention at all," he said, adding that the agency is concerned about being fair and "we don't want to subject the advertisers to two sets of adverse comments."

Report Russians planning first nuclear dirigible

LONDON (U) — The Soviet Union is reported to be planning construction of the world's first nuclear-powered dirigible, the British annual Janes Freight Containers said.

It said Soviet engineers in the Ukraine are working on plans for an airship which could carry 180 tons of freight or 1,800 passengers at 190 miles per hour.

Other engineers at Leningrad are reported to have started design work on another airship capable of carrying 200 passengers, or the equivalent weight in cargo, 10,000 miles nonstop, it said.

Enthusiams for airships in Russia has been running high since 1965 when a group of scientists from the Novosibirsk Geological Institute had a letter published in Izvestia deploring construction of roads and airports throughout the Soviet Union as a waste of money. They contended airships were a better proposition.

The Janes series of annuals include All the Worlds Aircraft, The Worlds Fighting Ships and Weapons Systems. Their information from behind the Iron Curtain is usually regarded as reliable.

Shortage worry 'premature'

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — A land studies educator believes national alarm over a total depletion of domestic natural gas reserves may be premature by as much as a generation, and can best be overcome by a return to simple philosophy.

Dr. Frank B. Conselman, president of the American Institute of Professional Geoscience, suggests a return by the industry to the philosophy of "seek and ye shall find."

"If we do not drill exploratory wells, we get no more discoveries," he said. "Or, as has happened, if we decrease our drilling, we decrease our discoveries and our reserves must inevitably decline as withdrawals continue."

DWP is using garbage gas from dump

LOS ANGELES (UPI) The Department of Water and Power recently began getting 200 kilowatts of electricity from garbage gas.

Once thought of as a nuisance, the gas-methane from decomposing garbage in a city dump—may offer a promising new source of energy, officials said.

A 125-foot shaft sunk into the 40-acre Sheldon-Arleta landfill in Sun Valley gathers the gas given off by decomposition of an accumulation of buried garbage that has been building for years.

The gas fuels a 300-horsepower internal combustion engine, which drives an electrical generator.

If the three month experiment proves successful, the garbage-powered generator works at Arleta will be expanded, and the system will be installed at other dumps too, said DWP General Manager Robert Phillips.

Eventually, he said, the department might be able to get 50,000 kilowatts of power from the garbage, enough to supply more than 85,000 homes.

Date Festival Feb. 15-24

Indio dressing up for its big dates

INDIO — Some 400 years ago, when the Spanish conquistadors, priests and Indian slaves moved into what is now the southwestern United States, they brought with them date seedlings and offshoots to plant in the New World. Many date palms died, but some flourished, particularly in the hot, dry air of the Coachella Valley, where subsequent importations and plantings of seeds from North Africa and the Middle East created a major industry for Southern California.

To celebrate the date industry, Riverside County held the first National Date Festival in the Indio City Park in 1921. Civic and social leaders donned costumes of the Middle East to portray the theme of "The Arabian Nights." The festival has been held intermittently since then, most frequently at the fairgrounds in Indio, purchased by the county in 1940.

The 1974 National Date Festival opens Feb. 15, with its traditional parades, pageantry, ostrich and camel races, art show, rock and gem displays, carnival and continuous entertainment by leading stars of show business.

The festival celebrates the annual harvest in the date-

HELLO, CAROL! — Producer David Merrick and the irrepressible Carol Channing shared a sentimental chat in New York recently at a 10th anniversary "Hello Dolly!" reunion party. Miss Channing opened in the musical at the St. James Theater Jan. 16, 1964. The show had 2,844 performances, second only to "Fiddler on the Roof" among Broadway musicals. Other "Dollies" who followed Miss Channing were Ginger Rogers, Betty Grable, Phillis Diller, Martha Raye, Pearl Bailey, and Ethel Merman. Jerry Herman was the composer - lyricist.

National contest seeks new songs

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Deep down in all of us is the conviction that we can probably write songs as well as the next guy. Probably there is no other ambition as universal as that, unless maybe it is the feeling that, given the breaks, we could do better as president than anybody else.

It is almost as hard to get anybody to listen to amateur songwriters as it is to become president, however. Publishers won't listen to unsolicited song manuscripts, for fear of legal action. They generally return them unopened.

Now, however, all of us would-be Cole Porters are getting a break, thanks to a bearded young man named Larry Goldblatt.

Goldblatt has produced a movie and managed performers, notably Blood, Sweat and Tears. In his travels, he noticed that there are big song-writing competitions abroad — in Rio de Janeiro, Tokyo and in several European cities, notably San Remo in Italy. He figured what America needed was a good song-writing festival.

Over next Labor Day, in Saratoga, N.Y., there will be The First Annual American Song Festival. There are two categories, for songs written by amateurs and professionals. Within each, there will be six types of songs judged — rock, pop, folk, country-western, soul-rhythm and blues, and gospel and religious.

From now until Labor Day, the Festival's judges will be screening out the entries — so far they have some 7,000 — until only the cream of the crop remain. There are prizes for finalists and grand prize winners will get $25,000.

Goldblatt says he thinks there is a lot of undiscovered song-writing talent lying around — "there is more undiscovered talent than discovered" — and he feels that a big festival is the way to discover it.

He hopes that, ultimately, there will be 100,000 songs entered. Many of them will come from professionals, who sometimes have the same problems everybody else has in getting songs heard. So far, Goldblatt says, entries have been received from such pros as Michel LeGrand and the team of Anthony Newley and Leslie Bricusse. (Pros can submit songs as long as they have not been recorded previously.)

The grand finals will be televised and the songs done by pro singers. Part of the finalists' prize will be a trip to Saratoga, so they can root for themselves.

"We'll get a lot of songs that are not so hot," says Goldblatt, "but we think there will be some nuggets there, too. Even though we have large cash prizes I think most of the entrants just want a chance to get their songs heard."

Try a lyric on for size, about your darling's lovely eyes, and maybe you will win a prize.

The entry fee is $10.85. If you have a song you think the world should hear, send for an entry blank to P.O. Box 57, Hollywood, Calif. 90028. And good luck.

LARRY GOLDBLATT

'Dawn's New Ragtime Follies' blends ragtime, rock 'n' roll

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Is ragtime dead? The answer is no.

The popular young trio, Dawn, has come forth with an exciting album, "Dawn's New Ragtime Follies" (Bell 1130), which captures the flavor of the toe-tapping past and blends it with the rock sound of today.

Tony Orlando, leader of the trio which is rounded out by Joyce Wilson and Telma Hopkins, is enthusiastic about the sound Dawn has generated. Orlando discourages the use of the term "rag-rock" to describe the music which he says is more closely related to old-time vaudeville.

The hit song of the "Follies" album is "Say, Has Anybody Seen My Sweet Gypsy Rose?", which should join the company of Dawn's previous runaway best-sellers — "Candida," "Knock Three Times," and "Tie a Yellow Ribbon on the Olk Oak Tree."

Irwin Levine and Larry Brown, Dawn's special writers, shaped up "Follies" in the tradition of the old Music Hall, beginning naturally, with an overture.

The pace is fast and even though the tracking runs more than 40 minutes, the show seems to end too soon.

Among the numbers are "Steppin' Out, I'm Gonna Boogie Tonight," "Sweet Summer Days of My Life," "Who's in the Strawberry Patch With Sally," "You Say the Sweetest Things," "Ukulele Man," "Atlanta" and "Daydream," the latter featuring Telma Hopkins on vocals.

Dawn is backed on this album by an energetic band. There is a nostalgic wah-wah trombone solo by Wayne Andre on "Steppin' Out, I'm Gonna Boogie Tonight."

producing capital of the Western Hemisphere, the Coachella Valley desert, extending from Palm Springs to the Salton Sea.

Reigning over the varied activities of the festival's 10-day run is pretty Debra Morris of Lake Elsinore as Queen Scheherazade, chosen in competition with other Riverside County beauties. She and her nine-member Court of Beauty will take part in the Arabian Street Parade, starting at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 18.

Some 100 singers, dancers and actors present free nightly performances of the Arabian Nights Pageant on an open-air stage. "Tale of the Royal Tutor," the title of this year's musical, will be presented at 6:45 and 8:20 p.m. on Saturdays.

The festival also includes the National Horse Show, one of the largest and most competitive horse contests on the West Coast. Camel and ostrich races, open to all volunteers, offer hilarious intermission attractions.

Free stage shows presented at 4 and 8 p.m. will bring Sugan Raye, Les Brown and his Band of Renown, Myron Floren, the Ink Spots and Alvino Rey and his band. West and Maza of "Laugh Parade" and the gypsy flamenco group, Los Malerbas, will also perform.

Book retells fictional story of Frankenstein's creation

HAUNTED SUMMER by Anne Edwards, Coward, McCann, and Geoghegan, $6.95.

Frankenstein is virtually a household word, evoking an image of a seven-foot humanoid with square shoulders, a greenish complexion, and sutures covering his brow and cheeks. (Acutally the monster had no name. Victor Frankenstein was its creator.) Few people know, however, that this classic, original modern science fiction novel was written in 1816-17 by Mary Shelley, wife of Percy Bysshe Shelley the poet, at the tender age of 19.

Frankenstein was conceived during the summer of 1816. Mary, who was then Shelley's lover but not yet his wife, Shelley, and Claire Clairmont, travelled to Lake Leman in Switzerland to escape from problems at home.

There they met Lord Byron accompanied by his physician, John Polidori. Claire already knew Byron. She had become an eager mistress to the reluctant lord in London and carried his child.

It was she who manuevered the meeting between Byron and Shelley in hopes that through their friendship, she could remain close to Byron. Byron and Shelley did, in fact, become very close friends and each had an extraordinary influence on the other's philosophy and poetry.

These five very unique, complex, and often controversial figures, and the summer they spent together form the basis for Anne Edwards' novel, Haunted Summer.

The novel is written in the first person. Mary is telling the story of the events and turbulent emotions which inspired the creation of Frankenstein.

It was a rainy summer and the five companions amused themselves in the evenings by reading German ghost stories aloud to each other. Byron suggested they each write a story based on the supernatural. Claire declined. Polidori had no talent. Shelley and Byron soon tired of the project but it appealed to Mary's nature and she took the challenge quite seriously.

"I busied myself to think of a story" she writes in the introduction to Frankenstein, ". . . One which would speak to the mysterious fears of our nature and awaken thrilling horror—one to make the reader dread to look round, to curdle the blood, and quicken the beatings of the heart."

The inspiration of her story finally came in a nightmare following a discussion of alanism and the giving of life to inanimate objects.

In her dream Mary saw a humanoid manufactured from parts taken from corpses. She expanded this idea into a unique novel, both in form and content, that shocked and horrified the public of that day.

Frankenstein continues to horrify, but it is also a fine literary work having antecedents in Milton's Paradise Lost and the Prometheus legend.

These circumstances, together with other incidents that occurred during that summer could have made an absorbing novel. Unfortunately, Miss Edwards has instead tried to conjure up a sort of romantic gothic horror tale by rearranging the facts.

The incidents and characterizations in Haunted Summer are a strange mixture of fact and fiction, and it is difficult to distinguish between the two unless one already knows a great deal about the lives of the protagonists. Some of the more bizarre incidents are factual while some of the more commonplace are not.

A certain amount of latitude or "literary license" is quite tolerable in the writing of fiction based on historical fact if it contributes to the development of the story. However, the historical inaccuracies, ommissions, alterations, and downright misleading impressions in Haunted Summer do not achieve the author's purpose and distort the entire picture of the characters and events for the reader.

The novel also suffers from the attempt to imitate Mary Shelley's 19th Century romantic style. The wordy style is not always enjoyable in the original and the imitation often degenerates into sentimental pap.

The author also has a tendency to continually digress and discuss bits and pieces of her characters' pasts.

Mary, Shelley, and Byron were fascinating people. The story of the summer they shared would, indeed, be rich and ample material for a novel. Anne Edwards does injustice to the real people and events involved, as well as to the reader, by trying to fabricate a horror tale instead of telling the story as it really happened.

Biography of Kamehameha worth expense

By Dr. Nicholas C. Polos

Richard Tregaskis THE WARRIOR KING: HAWAII'S KAMEHAMEHA THE GREAT—Macmillan Co., Inc., $10.00.

Every once in a great while an expensive book comes along that is really a gold mine, and worth both the time and money to be invested. This book is the last of the Tregaskis series, for unfortunately the author died in August 1973. Some of you may remember with fondness his powerful "Guadalcanal Diary" or his "John F. Kennedy and PT-109," one of the Landmark Series.

(Dr. Polos is an associate professor of history at La Verne College.)

This colorful and compelling book is the only full-length biography of the man who conquered the Naha Stone—the greatest king of Hawaii, Kamehameha. Written with grace and colorful narration the author carefully threads his way through the conflicting stories and legends of the early Hawaiians to

Of stagecoaches and true history

STAGECOACHING ON EL CAMINO REAL by Charles F. Outland. Clark Co., Glendale. $12.95.

Outland has tackled the history of transportation along the coast of California between 1861 and 1901, and presents a fascinating narrative of this adventurous period, long obscured by the romantic rhetoric of past writers.

Thorough documentation brings to task the historical inaccuracies of such scholars as Bancroft, Guinn, Thompson and West, O. O. Winther, Harris Newmark, and the Conklings.

By resorting to the precise dates found in Post Office records and daily newspapers of the period, the author has accurately outlined the various companies, routes, stations, and participants involved in the coastal regions.

Major western stagecoach personalities played important roles in the coastal sagamen like John "Little Satan" Allman, William Buckley, W.H. "Shotgun" Taylor, Sam Harper, Jared "Bob" Crandall, and J.C. Cheeney.

The Overland Mail Company; Wells Fargo; The Coast Line, San Juan, and Los Angeles Stage Company; and The Telegraph Stage Line all make their appearance in the plot spanning 40 years of steamers, stages, and expressmen.

Murders, hold-ups, accidents and wild rides are remembered in the many anecdotes drawn from contemporary sources.

The separation of fact and fancy is well drawn, allowing the romance of coastal staging to be properly portrayed. Dust storms in the San Fernando Valley, rides through the surf at Rincon Point, fording the flooded rivers of the coastal valleys, and the conniving corruption of the postal contractors are all exhibited in a clear and sometimes humorous light.

Twenty-six illustrations are included, many from the author's private collection. Two maps have been prepared exclusively for this work, based upon the author's research and detailing the various routes and stations along the coast.

Erma's third laugh riot

A touch of humor to lighten life

By PHIL ROCHE
P-B Staff Writer

I LOST EVERYTHING IN THE POST-NATAL DEPRESSION — By Erma Bombeck Doubleday & Company, Inc., $4.95

Erma Bombeck fans are smiling again. The author of the popular, witty "At Wit's End" has written book number three. This one's as much fun as her first two, and at times even as rollicking as her daily columns.

Women appreciate Erma's writing more than men, but what the heck, everyone likes a laugh now and then. She has an easy-going, amused tone to her writing that makes the reader feel that all's well in even the most hectic times.

She's a master, of course, at taking a routine event — such as dieting, or vacationing, or sickness, or viewing modern movies — and whips it around so the funny side is up.

Harried, harassed housewives (and their husbands) can find relief from drudgery with Erma's latest at their side. Somehow mopping a floor doesn't have to bring out the moper in us.

Her solution to every dilemma is, of course, to laugh it off. When sickly, sniffling kids bellyache about their belly aches, chuckle about it. When the budget doesn't balance, the fat doesn't budge, and age 40 creeps in and stays — don't fret, forget it, and have some fun. Erma's the right person to tell you how to look at it and laugh.

The book offers vignettes to sooth and smooth those household horrors. It's one of those open-to-any-page-and - chuckle books. Anyone who's ever wiped the runny nose of 5-year-old will get along fine with "I Lost Everything . . ."

Good-natured Erma plows through many a plight — she's lost "758 pounds in 20 years of dieting," is a constant victim of creeping underwear, and her kids take sick every Christmas. Besides that, her teen - agers are the world's greatest grunters and headshakers. They never speak.

The situations are exaggerated, corny, contrived, concentrated in her family (Ozzie and Harriet style), but Erma's loyal following loves it. Her fans accept her for what she is — a working housewife turned writer, a middle-aged woman turned story teller, and above all, a happy human still fascinated by a world where people laugh at themselves.

DEBATE CHAMPS — Mark Warfel and Mark Fabiani of Damien High School, La Verne, display first-place trophies they won in the Philadelphia Bicentennial Forum Debate Tournament. Trophies are perpetual.

Damien debaters capture 1st place

Mark Warfel and Mark Fabiani, students at Damien High School in La Verne, captured first place at the Philadelphia Bicentennial Forum Debate Tournament Jan. 11-13.

Thirty-two teams from 24 states participated. Warfel and Fabiani, one of two teams from California, held the best record of any team in the preliminary rounds.

With two judges in each of the six preliminary rounds, Warfel and Fabiani dropped only two ballots. In quarter finals, they defeated Peachtree High School of Georgia on a 3-0 decision.

Semi-finals brought a hard earned 4-1 win against Bronx Science High School from New York. The final debate round was held in the convention room of Independence Hall.

Marquette High School of Wisconsin lost to Damien on a close 4-3 decision.

Last year Damien won the newly established bicentennial tournament. As a result Damien retained the 4-foot traveling trophy.

Warfel and Fabiani received two silver plates as well as a large silver bowl.

On top of this, Warfel was awarded a silver cup for being the tournament's third best speaker. Fabiani received a set of historical etchings for achieving the 10th best speaker rating.

The tournament stresses debating and the historical culture of Philadelphia. It will continue through 1976 at which time the school that has won the trophy the most times will keep it permanently.

It looks like Damien High School is planning on doing just that.

Damien's math team steps out

By PAT BASE
Damien Reporter

Damien High School is sponsoring a math team to compete in the Pomona College Math Contest. The members from Damien are Fred Ahrens, senior; Joseph Vliestra, senior; and John Friendenbach, junior. They will be coached by Al Mistri, the head of Damien's mathematics department.

The final rounds for the contest to be held on March 9, will take place at the Pomona College campus. Each of the math teams and their coaches will be treated afterwards to lunch, compliments of Pomona College.

Though there were originally more than 100 high schools in the contest, there now are only 24. This is due to the elimination of the great majority of the schools by the preliminary examination which Pomona College sent out to each school that was in the initial running.

In-depth problems

The preliminary examination itself contained extremely in-depth problems covering many branches of mathematics. One member of Damien's math team, Joseph Vliestra, ranked fifth among the top 30 individual scorers on the examination.

When the final rounds of the contest take place, they will cover a wide field of mathematics including probability and statistics, calculus, advanced algebra, logic, and analytical geometry.

Judges for the final rounds will be members of the Pomona College mathematics department. Much prestige will be given and possibly valuable scholarships will be offered to members of the highest placed teams at the end of the contest.

Cheryl Knight returns home

By KITTY WOODALL
Bonita Reporter

Cheryl Knight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Knight of 1241 Aldersgate Drive, La Verne, has recently returned from her six-month stay in Citolletii, Pciaa Rio, Negro, Argentina.

"I really liked Argentina. I had a good time and I learned a lot," said Cheryl. "I also learned to appreciate my family and my country. We have a lot of problems, but America is a neat place to live. There is just no comparison.

"Many customs were quite different in South America. Lunch is the largest meal of the day, and dinner is eaten at 10 p.m. People kiss each other hello and goodby, whether male or female. The people were "happy, loving, and accepting," commented Cheryl.

Cheryl attended 11 classes, all during the morning hours. The school operates 24 hours per day to accommodate all students. Some schedules consists of classes from 10 p.m.-2 a.m. Each class is one and one-half hour long.

Everyone is friendly, according to Cheryl. At first it was hard for her to adjust to some of their eating habits and other customs, but afterawhile she learned to enjoy this new way of life, she said.

"The folks in California and Maine and all the way between will be able to see the inauguration ceremonies of their President in Washington, the Army and Navy games on Franklin Field and the struggle for supremacy in our national sport, baseball." Before you say "so what?" consider that this statement was made in 1929 by Charles Francis Jenkins, who might be called the father of television.

Using an 1884 German principle, Jenkins developed a workable system for broadcasting and receiving moving pictures by radio waves. Hundreds of amateurs built sets with Jenkins' instructions and received his regular, non-commercial broadcasts between 1928 and 1932.

Reagan's looking to get aboard presidential steed

By GEORGE SKELTON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Ronald Reagan, who galloped away from the Hollywood movie lots eight years ago to become one of California's most controversial and effective governors, is now trotting cautiously towards the White House carrying the banner of conservatism.

The carefully orchestrated formal announcement and the unabashed hard-sprint campaign have not occurred and probably will not until late 1975, if then. He conceivably may even stop short of that centerstage point in the presidential electoral process.

But right now, as Reagan enters the final year of his two terms as governor of the nation's most populous state, he very subtly is offering himself —and others are gently pushing him—as the conservative candidate for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

The way Reagan's advisers see it, two years before the first primaries, Reagan easily is running ahead of neophyte Republican John B. Connally for the allegiance of GOP conservatives. The other major potential candidates, moving right to left philosophically, are Vice President Gerald Ford—a prime contender despite his present disavowal of interest— Nelson Rockefeller and Illinois Sen. Charles Percy.

"Reagan appears to be the leading force in the conservative wing of the party at this time," agrees Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., a moderate.

Reagan, 62, is running well in the polls — second behind Ford in a mid-November Harris Survey and first in an August Gallup Poll.

His strategy basically is to appear interested but not brashly overanxious, earn party points by barnstorming the country in 1974 campaigning for Republican candidates and raising GOP money, retire from the governor's office after next year with a clean record of accomplishment, embark on a nationwide speaking tour in 1975 to preach his pro-free enterprise, anti-big government philosophy—and see what happens.

When one asks Reagan about presidential aspirations, his response normally is a sly grin and a sort of "ah shucks, golly gee" comment.

"Honestly, I just have to say that this far ahead I'm aware of the talk, the polls and everything, but I don't think they mean anything this far ahead," the governor replied recently while returning to Sacramento aboard his red, white and blue jet after a month of traveling.

Would he like to be president? "That's a 'no comment' question," he smiled.

"He's interested," says his press secretary, Clyde Wallthall.

"He's running," says a knowledgable ex-press secretary.

The former actor timidly sought the GOP nomination in 1968, finishing a poor third to Richard Nixon and New York Gov. Rockefeller. Reagan, a California favorite son candidate, procrastinated until the start of the 1968 GOP convention before formally announcing his candidacy for the nomination.

While Reagan was playing coy, delegates were pledging their votes elsewhere.

The governor's advisers are determined not to let that happen again.

"You can't go up to a southern chairman and ask, 'Can we have your support?' and he says, 'sure, but is Reagan running?' and you say, 'Well, not exactly, but'," points out Paul Haerle, the Republican state vice chairman and a top Reagan aide in 1968.

F. Clifton White of New York, Reagan's 1968 campaign manager, says the governor should "make up his mind reasonably early if he's going to be a candidate and start going after it." Reasonably early, he adds, is by the end of 1974.

Reagan foresees a formal announcement "sometime late in '75" if he decides to make an all-out run. His advisers concur.

White, who commanded Barry Goldwater's successful bloodletting battle for the 1964 GOP nomination and so far is not involved with any 1976 contender, says: "I would suspect, as of now, Reagan is the candidate of the conservatives."

Reagan has no formal campaign organization. But he does have a large, loosely knit cadre of political supporters, campaign financers and present and former aides always eager to help him mount a white charger.

Currently holding the reins as architect of the early presidential effort is Robert Walker, who carries the title "special assistant to the governor" and serves as Reagan's resident chief political adviser.

Walker, 47, is a softspoken veteran political activist who has labored for both the national and state Republican committees and in presidential campaigns for Reagan, Nixon and Goldwater.

Whereas Reagan is a fatalist who believes "the office seeks the man" with God's guidance and "for each of us there is a divine plan," Walker thinks that sometimes—particularly in presidential elections — "you have to help The Good Lord out."

Walker sees "some similarities" between Nixon's exhaustive 1966 campaigning for GOP candidates in which he earned the party IOUs that helped him win the nomination two years later, and Reagan's planned forays next year. But he also sees "some differences," namely that Nixon then was a private citizen with time to burn and Reagan still has a busy state to govern.

Reagan probably will make about one major out-of-state trip a month, Walker says, beginning with a one-week flurry into New England, New York, Washington and the South in mid-January.

"The objective is going to be to elect as many Republicans as possible," Walker adds, explaining that top priority will be given candidates who have a good chance of winning— regardless of whether the contest is in a region considered vital for Reagan in 1976.

"He'll go where he can help the party," Walker says. "If that also helps him with the party later on, that's incidental help."

The 1974 trips will be paid for primarily by the hosts. And the 1975 mashed potato circuit will be financed with speaking fees. Sooner or later, however, Reagan will require a healthy infusion of presidential campaign cash. The seed money will come from a dozen or so California millionaires —mostly industrialists — who comprise the governor's "kitchen cabinet."

One of them, William French Smith of Los Angeles, Reagan's personal attorney, says that regardless of whether money is plentiful in California — and it usually is—"it's just good politics" to also solicit funds from outside the state and build "a national constituency."

Reagan is winding down his gubernatorial career relatively free of scandal. But he has had a few problems, like a reported homosexual ring on his staff in 1967 and the disclosure he paid no state income tax in 1970.

The homosexual scandal broke just as Reagan was warming up for his first presidential run. It involved one or more members of his top staff—their names and numbers never have been publicly disclosed. They soon were fired.

"The trauma was so severe that the patient—the governor's office—went into a state of shock for four months," recalled one survivor.

Four years later, just after Reagan had overwhelmingly been elected to a second term, it was revealed that the governor who had insisted "taxes should hurt' to sound the alarm against government malignancy had himself paid no state income tax for one year. He blamed "business reverses." Later, it was disclosed he had invested in a cattle herd as a tax shelter.

And business thrives

Health their forte

POMONA — Helen and Armand Rossi, owners of Pomona Health Foods at 1625 Indian Hill Blvd. have found success in good health.

Their Pomona store is now in its third year and business continues to grow.

In fact, business has been good enough for the Rossi's to expand to an additional new location. The new store, located in the Foothill Center at Citrus and Alosta avenues in Azusa, opened in December.

In addition to offering all the quality products carried at the Pomona store, Azusa Health Foods also has a kitchen and serves "health lunches."

"We're very happy with the way things have grown," explains Rossi.

The Rossi family first came here in 1970 for a visit and moved here one year later to start their business. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rossi and their four children have helped operate the Pomona store and, now, the new Azusa store.

They offer a full range of health foods including dozens of natural grains, breads and food mixes, canned meats, vegetables, cheeses, yogurt, fertile eggs, raw milk, coffee substitutes and natural vegetable juices, cookies and candies made of natural sugars.

The store also has a complete line of natural spices and seasonings for use in the kitchen.

Products for body building and weight gaining programs are also stocked, along with products for weight reduction programs.

Because the health food field changes so rapidly, the Rossi family attends many lectures on good health practices and is sponsoring a public lecture on Feb. 12.

The program will feature Richard Talbot, a nationally known nutrition expert, who will speak on the biochemistry of nutrition.

His topic will be "How to Succeed with Your Body." Free consultation will be available at the program. The program will be held at 7 p.m. and is open to the public at no charge.

Probate law reform stirs lively debate

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California's system for the probate of wills, hailed as the finest in the nation by most attorneys, appears headed for major reform this year.

Lawyers are embroiled in a controversy over what form the changes will take.

On the surface there's an intramural battle in the legal profession, but it is a very practical matter for those who have gone through probate courts and walked away wondering what the lawyers did to get their fees.

It is even more important to those headed for probate.

Two bills currently before the legislature are being carefully watched by attorneys for there is a good chance their pocketbooks will be affected.

One, introduced by Sen. Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, has drawn the opposition of the State Bar Association.

Song's bill would have the state adopt the Uniform Probate Code, currently in operation in few states.

Under the code one could avoid probate court, with judges coming in to play only when controversies arise.

The legal niceties would be presided over by a "personal representative."

A committee of the state bar said the code may be an improvement in some states but not California.

Los Angeles attorney Ron Gother, in an article in the bar journal, said the code would "open the door for fraud and mismanagement of estates."

There's another bill before the lawmakers which has the bar's backing and which Gother helped draft.

That bill, by Assemblyman William Bagley, R-San Rafael, would retain the court's formal opening and closing of estates.

Under this system, the personal representative would still be held accountable by the courts.

Richard Tomson, an attorney on Song's staff, says that under the current system an attorney gets aid "no matter what legal work he does."

"Under the code, he gets paid for what he does," he said. "For a simple situation, a small estate, a simple procedure is needed."

Tomson admits the bill "has a long way to go but there's an infinite variety of middle ground that could be found."

Bill Keller, a member of Bagley's staff and also an attorney, sees his boss' bill has having "better than a 50-50 chance this year."

"We've had this before the legislature for three years now and on any major bill it usually takes three years," he said.

Another proposal that has been kicked around but isn't given much of a chance would lift the ceiling on the size of estates that don't have to go to probate.

The current ceiling is $5,000 and the plan would increase that to $35,000 if property is involved.

This measure has not been endorsed by the state bar but, surprisingly, many attorneys involved in probate think it's a good idea.

Four successful probate attorneys were recently interviewed in San Francisco and all thought the maximum should be increased for "small estates."

They felt a "small estate" was anything less than $200,000.

"Anything under that is just not worth an attorney's time," one said.

The men wanted to remain anonymous because of an ethical bar against "advertising or seeking publicity."

Richard J. Wall, an inheritance tax referee, talked freely and openly about probate.

"Under the law if an estate is under $5,000 all you have to do is get a printed affidavit and just fill it out," said Wall. "You can transfer a title just by filling out the affidavit. I really think the amount should be increased to about $20,000."

Wall says that probate work is "one of the better areas, feewise, if a big estate is involved."

An attorney's fee is currently set on a sliding scale proportioned to the size of the estate involved.

The fee is $2,730 for an estate of $100,000.

"There are serious tax problems and any good lawyer can save a great deal of money for his client," Wall said. "And the fee is tax deductible."

To those who argue that the lawyer should be paid only for what he does, Wall replies that a man should be compensated for his expertise.

"This happens every day in real estate and medicine," he said.

However, one woman attorney who does a large amount of probate, said the law get so adept in the "they can just put it and get it done in little and pull a big fee."

One can bypass the law entirely and do the work self, but there's an old sa that a "man who acts as own attorney has a fool f client."

A labyrinth of legal and matters are involved would overwhelm the lay and even some attorneys specializing in probate.

One man did solve problem.

He took courses in prob law at the University of C fornia and handled the est saving himself an estima $25,000.

Reagan aims at the presidency...

"I have been interested in cattle, horses and ranching all of my life," explained the former horse breeder and cowboy star.

Recently, on Nov. 6, Reagan's political prestige was jolted by unexpected voter rejection of a complex tax limitation plan he had campaigned virtually fulltime for since Spring. Had it passed, Reagan could have held up the measure to Republicans everywhere as an example of what he had accomplished in California and could nationally if given the chance.

The defeat probably did not damage Reagan with his national conservative constituency. "How can you get hurt by trying to cut taxes?" he says. But it probably caused eyebrows to raise among party VIPs for failing to deliver an important vote in his home state.

"It may have hurt some of the politicians who look at any defeat as a defeat, but it's not a serious disability," says White.

Reagan, whose gubernatorial trademark has been a "squeeze, cut and trim" fiscal policy, still will leave Sacramento with a thick scrapbook of accomplishments sure to please millions of Republicans.

Reagan contends the state's current $9.4 billion budget actually would be up around $13 billion if it were not for his program slashings and riding herd on Democratic legislatures.

Welfare reforms he initiated have saved $1 billion and removed roughly 375,000 people from relief, he says.

Helped by Democrats, he pushed through a major property tax relief program, something politicians long had promised but never previously delivered.

Reagan has stunted government growth. There are approximately the same number of state employes today as seven years ago when he took office.

Politically, he has kept the peace in the Republican party and unquestionably is the dominant force within the California GOP. His disciples are in power and unchallenged.

He has been loyal to Nixon and apparently would have accepted the vice presidency after Spiro T. Agnew resigned had it been offered. Representatives telephoned leading party members before Ford was selected to pass the word that Reagan would take the job if Nixon wanted him, according to one person who was called.

Reagan will be age 65 in 1976. But he looks much younger with his full head of hair, slim waist and rosy cheeked, handsome face.

"I don't feel any differently than 20 years ago,' he says.

Growing pup needs chewing substitute

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: Woofie is a lovable, terribly clumsy, ten-week-old, purebred puppy. His mother was a purebred Doberman, his father, they think, was a purebred Great Dane. He is teething now and that's what is giving me so much trouble. I can understand with his teeth growing in he simply has to chew. The trouble is my hands and arms are getting so sore I can hardly stand to have him chewing on them. How long will it be before his teeth grow in and he stops this? Please answer immediately! — T. E.

Dear T. E.: Hopefully, you have already found some safe chewing substitutes for Woofie. Your arms could be consumed well past the elbow long before Woofie's adult teeth are in at around six months of age. Acceptable substitutes include quality nylon bones and other safe chewables ranging from large dog biscuits to an occasional raw carrot. Even if Woofie's teeth weren't anihiliating your hands and arms, allowing this type of chewing to become a habit pattern is dangerous. Should he become used to being allowed to chew on humans, he might expect to be allowed to continue the process later in life.

Always offer and insist that a puppy accept substitute chewables rather than a part of the human anatomy. With luck and training, this preference will continue when the dog is an adult.

Canadian folksinger at Pavilion

LOS ANGELES — Gordon Lightfoot, Canadian folksinger and songwriter, has added a second concert to his previously announced appearance at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center at 8 p.m. Sunday. The second concert will be held there at the same time Wednesday.

Lightfoot, 36, was born in a small lakeside town 80 miles north of Toronto, Canada. When he feels the need to write new tunes, he leaves his home in Toronto and flies to another city and another country. A recent six-day stay in a London hotel resulted in 15 new melodies. He turns out three or four songs a day, doing both words and music.

Lightfoot now plays about 50 concerts a year, primarily to college audiences. Because he composes folk music, people think he lives in the country; however, he and his family live in Toronto. "I like to go to the country and I like to think about it," he says. "But I prefer a place with lots of folks around, and that's the city."

Obscene film free, but asks donations

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — A movie theater which was raided last week for violating a statute which prohibits exhibiting obscene material for commercial purposes, showed the movie "Deep Throat" Monday and did not charge admission.

District Attorney Tim Curry said he is studying the situation to see if the donations violate the law.

Ease of movement a prime facet in design

By HIAWATHA ESTES

is always considered an asset if design of a home allows one to k directly from the garage to the se. This is true with this plan and especially be appreciated during ement weather. Such a layout reduces the distance from the age to the kitchen and will save ny steps each time one returns n market shopping.

roofed area leads to the front ch where a door opens to an entry ch is lighted through a stationary s panel next to the door. Four ets open to this entry and hall. re is excellent traffic circulation n the entry to other areas of the ne.-

he more formal living and dining as are at the front of the home, t to the entry. The informal famiroom and kitchen are at the rear he house where private indoor-outr living can really be enjoyed. h rooms are quite generous in e. Only cabinets separate the famiroom and kitchen.

he handsome Spanish exterior indes many interesting design feaes. Especially note how the gable f over the bedroom wing continues t on each side over a wall projection in which has been located an arch with ornamental iron gates. Similar ornamental iron extends between the stucco columns in front of the living-dining area. A low planter is in front of the bedrooms while heavy wooden beams project from under the low, sweeping gable roof to match similar beams which outline the front bedroom windows.

This same basic exterior plus a ranch exterior are also available in a three bedroom plan, at a different price structure, and are illustrated in our book, Homes by Hiawatha.

Complete working drawings for plan 41097 can be purchased for only $12.55 for the first set and $6.30 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until May 27, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.05. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is available for $1.05.

The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes—$1.31; Prize Homes—$1.31; Hallmark Homes—$1.31; Town & Country Homes—$1.31; Homes by Hiawatha — $1.31; Ranch & Modern Homes—$2.10. Do it yourself

Converting fireplace into usable source of heating

By MR. FIX

Many a fireplace is going to be reactivated from its decorative status due to the national fuel crisis. Between the long disuse of the fireplace and the inexperience of the would-be user, there are going to be quite a few disappointments.

You may find yourself with a fireplace that puts out smoke but no heat. The problem could be anything — a clogged chimney, an improperly working damper or a poorly designed fireplace.

Make certain the damper works easily and that it opens and closes all the way.

Give the fireplace a good cleaning, vacuuming up into the flue as far as you can reach. To see if the flue is clogged hold a piece of burning paper in the opening. If it burns well and the smoke goes up the chimney then the flue is clear and you can go ahead and build a fire.

If the smoke comes back in your face then the chimney may be clogged. Double check the damper and make certain it isn't partically closed.

If the chimney needs cleaning, better call in a professional. The exception — if you live in a one story house AND you are sure-footed. But chimney cleaning is messy as well as hazardous, so think twice.

You may have a fireplace that doesn't work well even with a clean chimney or a properly working damper. The problem may be the design. Builders' claims notwithstanding, a bigger fireplace isn't necessarily a better fireplace. Not unless it has a big flue to go with it.

Try to measure both the fireplace opening and the flue opening. The flue area should be at least one-12th the area of the fireplace opening. If it is less, then you are bound to have trouble.

You can't enlarge the flue. Cut down the size of the fireplace opening instead. Easiest method is to buy a metal hood and install it across the top of the opening.

Build a small fire in your fireplace to see just what you may have to do. With the fire going, hold a board or piece of sheet metal across the opening. Lower it until the fire seems to draw well. This will help you determine how large a hood you will need.

Maybe the hood is not enough, or more than you need. You can fill in the opening with masonry. The hearth can be built up with one or more layers of bricks. A vertical row of bricks can be added to each side.

Sometimes the opening is the right size but the damper may have been installed too low. Lowering the top of the opening in effect raises the height of the damper.

The trouble may be outside rather than inside. Check the chimney. It should extend three feet above the top of the house. If it is too low it can be extended with a cap. Interference can come from overhanging branches. Have these pruned.

Sculpted art works offered as replicas

Alva Museum Replicas, represented by New York Graphic Society in the Los Angeles House for visiting art offers an extensive collection of sculpted art works.

The range is enormous, from the earliest Egyptian and Greek pieces, to contemporary art by some of today's most provocative artists. The company produces a selection of well over six hundred authorized sculpture reproductions of treasures from the world's great museums.

They cast their replicas from impressions of the priceless originals, and handfinish them to museum authentication standards. Each piece comes with a descriptive history giving the background of the piece, and the museum or private collection which houses the original.

It Happened in Pomona

By Doc Peirsol

King of the chauvinists

've come a long way, Baby, (or perhaps I say Ms. Whoever You Are.) in your efforts to women's rights and women's liberation. And don't believe it, take a look at what your less ate sisters here in Pomona were forced to put h in the year 1904.

hat time there was an Editor of The Pomona Review who beyond all doubt easily qualified l-time greatness as Pomona's Supreme Male inist Pig. For day-by-day, in every way, he missed an opportunity to point out in his edi- column the inferiority of women and the Di- Right of male dominance. Today, just for the d and only as historical proof that some men men with a vengance in that long-gone day, examine a few of that Editor's more pungent vations:

looks like a waste of time and energy for the able Susan B. Anthony to make a journey to to preside at an international woman's suf- convention when a Kentucky judge has just ed that a man has a right to whip his wife ever he thinks she needs it."

man thinks long and speaks short — A woman thinks short and speaks long."

"Young ladies who study law expect to lay down the law to their husbands after they are graduated."

"Men do the headwork of the world — Women are the head rests."

"After a man has tried to talk business to a woman for five minutes he is prepared to sympathize with dry goods clerks."

Today no editor in his right mind would dare to print such blasphemy. But then, in the year that Pomona Daily Review editor had a lot of illustrious male support to give him courage.

The famous author, Rudyard Kipling, for example, only a few years before had pointed out: "A woman is only a woman but a good cigar is a smoke."

Or was it, "A rag and a bone and a hank of hair?"

Well anyway, as you can see by Pomona's very own historical records, you've not only come a long way, Baby, you've finally overcome.

Hawaii's king . . .

fathom the life story of the man who first united the Hawaiians and became their first and greatest king.

Tregaskis worked under serious handicap, since there was no written language in the Hawaiian Island, until the white man came, so he had to piece together the flights of imagination of the priests or kahunas, and the early historians, Malo, Kamakau, Is and Fornander. He goes beyond the Carlylean theory of the great men of history to transport the reader in sixteen short chapters to another time and place.

In cinematic detail he paints a vivid picture of the Sandwich Islands as they once were before the coming of the supersonic jet, indeed before the white man inundated the Islands with missionaries who desired to do good, and did very well indeed by seizing the Islands!

There is a solid biblography and index to accompany the text, but it is the text itself which excites the reader as he moves from inter-island combat to the councils of the tribal chiefs. Tregaskis explains the unique and varied customs of the early Hawaiian culture and religion.

The hula-hula is more than a wild waist show, a form of island rotating of the crops, it now takes on a new symbolic meaning in the lives of Polynesians. The story of Kamehameha, who came to epitomize the highest Hawaiian values of pure beauty, freedom and power, is the Everyman Hero, but Tregaskis goes beyond this to capture the aura and essence of this great man.

Who can resist dreaming about a man who "was true to the Hawaiian fondness for the good things of life like feats of atheltics and strength and grace: swimming and surfing and tropical seas and shores, pursuing beautiful women and voluptuousness, living among palms and flowers, mountains, rainbows, volcanoes and white surf and tropical lagoons, and trade winds — nature's air conditioning which have made Hawaii and Polynesia world famous."

With this kind of a plot, the reader cannot help but see the white surf breaking against verdant shores. It is almost enough to make the sedentary American yearn to run away and hide in Polynesia-land, unless, of course, he has seen the recent TV series "Hawaii Five-O," which would deter him from jumping out of his frying pan into the island fire.

The book is beautifully printed with excellent prints of early Hawaii, and a first-rate family chronology of Kamehameha's family. In a real sense this book is more than a history of the Napoleon of the Pacific, it is really a moving picture of an important part of Hawaiian history. It really should be read before one goes to the Islands for it will teach you the real meaning of Aloha.

If this is the last of the Edens then Americans will glimpse the real paradise that once was a reality before the advent of the mainlanders with their travel-bureau misonceptions and myths. This unusual book is worth all the pol you can muster. It is an adventure in history, geography, anthropology, and in the art of writing a beautiful biography.

Market watches January activity

ds the year to return to ng in stocks, in an at- to keep ahead of infla- — or at least stay even t?

ybe you can tell, by the of January. What the et does in the first h of the year has been, e past, one of the most rate forecasts available e investor, according to vid collector of methods predicting market behav-

th an accuracy of 83.3 cent, what happened to market in January has fo- adowed the market's ups downs for the whole year, ing only four times since , according to the 1974 ion of "The Stock Tra- 's Almanac."

ow in its seventh year, the lication is a kind of Old rmer's Almanac, trans- nted to Wall Street -- ugh it's actually published Old Tappan, N.J., a consid- bly more rustic setting, as its a marriage of farmer stock trader, for almanac rposes.

For example: "Is Jan. 24 a od day for "planting" mo- y, in the market? It should ; there's a 78.9 per cent ance of the market rising that day. The following y is not so good for plant- g, there being only a 47.4 r cent chance of the market ving an up day.

The percentages are calcu- ted from the actual move- ents of the market, on each trading day of the year, from May, 1952, to April, 1971. The almanac's editor, Yale Hirsch, has collected or calculated dozens of similar mathematically probable patterns.

The almanac, besides being a desk calendar and appointment book, charts such trading tips as the best months of the year, the best days of the month — even hour-by-hour market patterns.

Is the market more likely to rise on a Friday than on a Monday? (Yes, 53 per cent more likely.) Do midterm elections as in 1974, affect the market? Apparently so. The seven trading days on either side of election day have averaged twice as much price gain as the same days in non-election years. ("We can't think of one believable reason why this should be so," Hirsch comments.)

But of all the probability patterns to be extracted from the historical data, "the January barometer beats all other indicators," says Hirsch. "We doubt that any technique or indicator ever devised has been so remarkably accurate."

If the market rises during January, as measured by the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, the market will have an up year — or has had, 83.3 per cent of the time. Gains for January of more than 1 per cent foreshadowed the 13 best market years of the period since 1950.

The eight bear market years since 1950 all were preceded by "inferior Januaries," when the index declined during the month or, in one case, showed only a miniscule gain.

If you want to do your own market forecasting for 1974, then, the S&P 500 index stood at 97.55 as trading opened this year. Take a reading on Jan. 31, and . . . proceed with caution.

For despite the 83.3 per cent accuracy of the barometer, there's a little more to beating the market than writing two figures on a piece of paper.

It is the firm belief of editor Yale Hirsch that "any reader can forecast market trends with accuracy and confidence" — but then he goes on to list the prerequisites:

"By gaining an understanding of the political stock market cycle, the post-election year syndrome, Federal Reserve Board operations, investor psychology, market bias at certain times of the week, month, or year, and 'contrary opinion'."

That makes it a bit more complicated than just watching what January does — but still manageable, if you're willing to do your homework.
